

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

THE PUBLICATIONS

OF

THE THORESBY SOCIETY.

Miscellanea.

I II ONLODI OCCILII.

(ESTABLISHED IN THE YEAR MDCCCLXXXIX.)

VOLUME XI.

MISCELLANEA

Consisting of Parts published in 1900, 1902 and 1904.

PREFACE.

THE Council of the Thoresby Society have pleasure in presenting to the Members the fourth volume of the "Miscellanea," and the eleventh of the publications of the Society, consisting of the "Miscellaneous" parts issued for 1900, 1902, and 1904.

The important work of which the various papers of these issues is the outcome, merits the gratitude of all those who are at the spresent and those who will be in the future interested in the history of Leeds and district.

An important addition has been made to the history of early families of the district by a paper on that of Leathley, in which will be found a remarkable record of benefactions to Kirkstall Abbey, Fountains Abbey, and other Yorkshire religious houses. The series of Leeds wills extracted from the probate registry at York has been carried on from 1531 to 1537. These, with the Yorkshire Lay Subsidies of the year 1545 for the Wapentakes of Aggbrigg and Morley, provide material for a picture of the personal life and a history of the development of surnames in the sixteenth century; while the seventeenth century is represented by documents relating to the Leeds manor, to the pulpit, to the police court, and to military expenses.

Captain Pickering was sworn in 1656 into the office of Justice of the Peace, and his note-book brings back in racy fashion certain picturesque and disreputable events of that and the following year.

Two maps, one of 1806 and one of 1815, are added to those previously published, so that there are now in the "Miscellanea" five prints of Leeds maps of different periods. There are reproductions of these, or portions of them, issued at the same size, so that they can be procured in series, and they are described in articles which exhibit the fullest local knowledge.

A somewhat audacious attempt was introduced into the second part of this volume, work of a more general archæological character being undertaken in those pages. The Churchwardens' Accounts for Methley were made to form the text for an article on churchwardens, which may, it is hoped, prove of occasional value for reference, if not sufficiently attractive for general reading.

The Civil War Accounts, 1647-1650, are printed from a document in the possession of the Society, and which is alluded to in the "English Historical Review" as being of great interest to military historians.

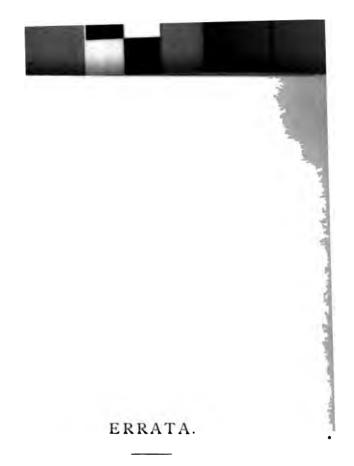

The Rev. Richard Stretton, first minister of Mill Hill Chapel, 1672-7, is fully described, and in the Survey of the Leeds Manor, 1612, will be found an immense amount of most interesting matter, vitally important to the history of the geographical development of Leeds. The Council fully appreciate the kindness by which the Headmaster and Governors of the Leeds Grammar School have enabled them to use this copy.

The Excursions of the Society continue to attract large parties, and the Council are considering a request made by Members attending them, to reprint full programmes of the first fifty, when carried out, in a subsequent "Miscellanea."

The Family of Leathley or Lelay.

By W. PALEY BAILDON, F.S.A.

THE earliest holders of Baildon, after Domesday, of whom we have any record, are the Lelays. The whole subsequent manorial history turns upon them, and it is not improbable that they represent the owner of Baildon in the time of William the Conqueror. Moreover, as they have received scant attention at the hands of Yorkshire genealogists, I may be pardoned for treating their history at some length.

They were descended from EBRARD or EVRARD, a vassal of the Percys, who held four carucates of land in Ledelai (Leathley) at the time of Domesday, besides other property in the West Riding and in Lincolnshire. Evrard's surname is nowhere mentioned. His various manors were as follows:—

fo. 301b. Land of the King. Manor. In Castelai (Castley) Eluuin had one carucate to be taxed, and Berne and Elflet had one carucate. There is land for two ploughs. Ebrard, a man of William de Perci's, cultivates (colit) it, but William does not vouch for it. T.R.E. worth ten shillings, now sixteen pence.

fo. 322. Land of William de Perci. Manor. In Ledelai (Leathley) Archil had four carucates to be taxed, where there may be two ploughs. Now Ebrard holds it of William. He himself has two ploughs there and five villans, and three bordars have two ploughs; a mill worth two shillings; two acres of meadow. T.R.E. worth forty shillings, now twenty-four shillings.

fo. 3216. Land of William de Perci. Manor and Soke. In Haghedenebi (Hagenby near Tadcaster—disappeared) Archil had three carucates to be taxed, where there may be two ploughs. The soke is in Hailaga [Helaugh]. Now Ebrard has it of William. He himself has one plough, and there are two villans and a bordar with one plough. Four acres of meadow, etc. T.R.E. value twenty shillings, now twenty-four shillings.

fo. 322. Land of William de Perci. Six manors. In Lintone, Wiber, Ulf, Ravenchil, Ruschil, Ber and Ulchil had eight and a half carucates of land to tax, where there may be four ploughs. Now Ebrard holds it of William. He himself has one plough, and three villans and two bordars have one plough; a mill worth sixteen shillings, etc. T.R.E. worth sixty shillings, now forty shillings.

^{.} This paper is taken from the Author's collections for a "History of Baildon," to be published hereafter; the right of reprinting is reserved.

fo. 354. Land of William de Perci. Lincolnshire. Manor. In Lagesbi (Legsby) Alsi had one carucate of land; there is land for two ploughs. Evrard, a man of William's, has there two ploughs, and six villans and one bordar have one plough; a mill worth sixpence, etc. T.R.E. worth thirty shillings, now forty shillings.

Soke. In Houten (Houghton) the soke of ten bovates of land is in Legsby. Land for two ploughs. Evrard, a man of William's, has there six socmen and ten villans and two bordars with two ploughs and thirty acres of meadow.

It will be noticed that these were all held of William de Percy, except Castley, which, at the time of the Survey, was held directly of the Crown.

Evrard's descendants made Leathley their principal seat, and from that circumstance called themselves "de Lelay," that being the early way of spelling the name. Nothing further is known of Evrard himself, save that he had a son Hugh. He was no doubt a Norman, like his lord, William de Percy; he was probably a young man at the time of the Survey, and was very likely the son of one of Percy's original followers.

HUGH SON OF EVRARD gave lands in Stainton in Craven¹ to Selby Abbey. This grant is mentioned in the confirmation charters of Stephen (1154), Henry II, Richard I, John, and Henry III. Hugh also gave lands in Thorp, which grant is mentioned in the charters of Henry II and Henry III only, and is therefore in all probability subsequent to Stephen's confirmation charter of 1154.²

The later Lelays were great benefactors to many of the religious houses of Yorkshire, especially to Fountains. I think the most convenient plan will be to give short notes of their various charters under the headings of the respective houses, and to reserve comment until we resume the chronological story of the family.

FOUNTAINS ABBEY.

I. Adam son of Hugh de Lelay quit-claimed from himself and his heirs all his claim to half the mill of Rigton to Hugh, his eldest brother, and his heirs, in consideration of ten marks of silver. If Adam or his heirs shall at any time do anything contrary to this charter, they shall forfeit thirty marks to the fabric of St. Peter's at York by way of penalty.³

WILLIAM SON OF HUGH SON OF EVRARD was probably born about 1130. He occurs as a witness to a very early charter, by which Norman son of Ughtred confirmed to the poor men of the Hospital of S. Peter at York (afterwards known as S. Leonard's) four bovates of land in Bramhope, which his mother had given them out of the lands she held in frank-marriage. Among the witnesses were Adam and Walter, son and brother respectively of Norman, the grantor of the charter. This charter is probably not much, if any, later than 1160. We shall see that William's son, Hugh de Lelay, married Christiana, daughter of this Adam fitz Norman. The descendants of Norman were known by several surnames, derived from their different properties; two of these, de Pathorne and de Rimmington, will occur later.

The earliest dated item we have of the de Lelays by that name is in the Pipe Roll of 12 Henry II, 1165-6. Among many others who were amerced for concealing the death of one Cnud, William son of Hugh de Leeleia is set down as owing 100s. Adam son of Norman, mentioned above, was charged with 13s. 4d. Both these were in the wapentake of Claro. In the next year, 13 Henry II, 1166-7, Adam paid his mark, and de Lelay paid five marks, £3 6s. 8d. He paid the remaining £1 13s. 4d. in the following year.

In 22 Henry II, he was fined ten marks, £6 13s. 4d., for a default; of which he paid half. In the same year he was fined fifty marks, £33 6s. 8d., in the americement of the forest; he paid one half down and the balance the following year.

In 26 Henry II, Adam son of Norman and William son of Hugh de Leelai paid 200 marks, £133 6s. 8d., for leave to marry Adam's daughter to William's son. They paid 50 marks this year, 50 marks in 27 Henry II, 1180-1; in 28 Henry II, 1181-2, William paid 30 marks and Adam 70s.; in 29 Henry II, 1182-3, William paid £10 and Adam £5; in 30 Henry II, 1183-4, William paid 44s. and Adam £6; in 31 Henry II, William paid the balance of 22s. 8d., and Adam paid £5 10s., leaving a balance of £13 6s. 8d., which he paid off in 34 Henry II, 1187-8.

We should infer from the large sum paid that Christiana was a considerable heiress; but it is difficult to see why the King's consent was necessary, unless Adam was a tenant in capite. This he may well have been.¹

William de Lelay witnessed a charter of his son Hugh to Fountain's Abbey, No. viii. He and Hugh witnessed a charter from William son of William (of Stainburn) to Roger Poictevin, No. x. Both these related to land in Stainburn; and all were probably shortly before or after 1200.

¹ In 1166 Adam son of Norman and Henry son of Vpolitus jointly held a knight's fee of William de Percy. Black Book of the Exchequer.

The first dated document showing any connection of the Lelays with Baildon is the Pipe Roll of 28 Henry II, 1181-2. The extracts from that and the succeeding Rolls are as follows:—

William de Lelay owes fifteen marks for having a recognition touching land in Beildon against John son of Aissulf, to wit, that he (John) had no right (to it).

The entries in the rolls for 29 and 30 Henry II are similar.

The roll for 31 Henry II gives more information:

William de Lelay renders account of fifteen marks for having a recognition of land in Beldun which John son of Essulf claimed against him (to wit), whether the predecessor of the said John, who was an Englishman (Anglicus), and through whom he claimed the land, was seised thereof on the day and year in which King Henry, the grandfather of the Lord King, was quick and dead. (He pays) into the Treasury five marks, and owes ten marks.

William de Leelay renders account of ten marks for having a recognition of the land of Beldon, as annotated in the Roll for the past year. (He pays) into the Treasury £4, and owes four marks.²

William de Leelay renders account of four marks for having a recognition of the land of Beldon. He delivers it into the Treasury, and is quit.³

This interesting series of entries is of the highest importance. They show (1) that William de Lelay was in possession of land in Baildon in 1181-2; (2) that John son of Essulf, in or prior to that year, claimed certain land there as his right; (3) that the nature of the action was what was known as the grand assize; (4) that William de Lelay paid a fee of fifteen marks (£10) in order to have the case tried in a particular way known as a recognitio; (5) that John claimed through a "predecessor," which must here be understood to mean "ancestor," who was seised of the property on December 1st, 1135, the date of the death of King Henry I, and (6) that the said "predecessor" was of English descent, that is, that he was not a Norman.

This, as I have already said, is the earliest record showing that the Lelays had property in Baildon, but we have, unfortunately, nothing to tell us when or how they obtained it. It may well be that Evrard was in possession as under-tenant at the time of Domesday, or perhaps he or Hugh his son married an heiress or co-heiress, and became possessed of Baildon in her right. If the latter supposition be the correct one, then the dispute with John fitz Essulf may have arisen over the partition of the property.

In 1201-2, 3 John, a fine was levied between William son of Hugh de Lelay, plaintiff, and Jordan de Sancta Maria and Alice his wife, defendants, touching three hundred acres of wood in Helage Park. William quit-claims to Jordan and Alice and the heirs of Alice. A fine of half a mark was paid for the licence of concord.

William de Lelay was living in the third year of King John, 1201-2, and as his son Hugh was old enough to be married in 1180, we may assume that William was an elderly man; he cannot well have been less than sixty years old, and was probably more, at the date mentioned, 1201-2.

This William de Lelay began the extraordinary series of benefactions to religious houses which I have already set out at some length, and which was continued by his sons. The following charters must be attributed to him, and are therefore most probably all of them before 1200:—No. xxxiv and xxxvi (where he calls himself "knight") gifts to Salley Abbey of lands in Stainton, Bolton in Bowland, and elsewhere within his fee; No. xxxix, confirming his son Robert's gift in Bolton to the same house. The Stainton here mentioned is probably Stainton-Cotes, now a farm-house, in the township of Bank Newton and parish of Gargrave, seven miles from Skipton. He also gave lands in Horsforth to Kirkstall Abbey, No. LIII, and to the Templars; the latter gift consisted of six bovates of land, which were conveyed to Kirkstall by the Master of the Templars, No. LIV.

His children were Hugh and Robert. The Jordan de Lelay, whose son William married Margery daughter of Hugh de Lelay, may also have been a son of William's.

HUGH SON OF WILLIAM DE LELAY was probably born before 1160; at any rate he was old enough, as we have already seen, to be married in 1180.

His benefactions to religious houses were very numerous. The following numbers in the foregoing list refer to them:—No. xIV, confirming the grant of land in Stainburn by his daughter Isolda to Fountains; No. xx, by which the Abbat of Fountains re-grants to him certain rights of pasture; No. xxxvIII, granting to Salley Abbey land between Askwith and Weston, and confirming a grant of land in Rimmington by Christiana de Pathorn (this was probably a grant by the lady who afterwards became his wife, made before her marriage, and confirming land in Farnley (Otley), Gasgill, Stainton and Rimmington, given by his brother Robert; No. xLIV, granting the church of Weston to S. Peter's at York; No. XLIX, confirming the grants of land in Appleton by his brother Robert and Ralph de Bray to S. Peter's; No. Lv, relating to a grant of land in Horsforth to Kirkstall; No. Lvi, granting a tenement in Micklegate, York, to Kirkstall; No. LVII, granting land in Leathley to S. Peter's, afterwards S. Leonard's, Hospital, at York; No. LXII, granting half the mills of Leathley and lands there to the same house; No. Lxv, granting the church of Leathley, so far as it belonged to him, to Helaugh Park Priory; No. LXVI, granting land in Leathley, and No. LXVII, granting a rent in Castley to the same house; No. Lxx, confirming a grant by his daughter Isolda of land in Castley to Nun Appleton Priory; and No. LXXI, granting land in Rodes in Menston to Bolton Priory; No. xxxIII, granting services in Castley to Fountains.

Passing over for a moment his dealings with Baildon, the following notes record all I have been able to find about him, except numerous undated charters witnessed by him. He and Robert his brother witnessed a charter from Jordan de Sancta Maria and Alice his wife to Helaugh Park. He and his father witnessed the charter of William son of William (de Stainburn) to Roger Poitevin relating to Stainburn, which will be referred to hereafter.

Of dated documents, the earliest is in 5 John, 1203-4, when Hugh paid fifteen marks for a concealment. This probably had something to do with his father's death, which happened about that time. In the same roll it is recorded that Hugh de Witon owed twenty shillings for having an inquisition of lawful men whether Hugh de Lelay and William son of Herbert had appealed him through hate or for some other cause. A fine was levied in Easter Term, 6 John, 1205, between Walter de Faucunberge, plaintiff, and Hugh de Lelay, defendant, touching three and a half carucates of land in Apeltone, which Hugh admits to be the right of Walter. Walter grants the same to Hugh and his heirs, to hold of Walter and his heirs by the services due from twenty-two and a half bovates of land, where fourteen carucates make a knight's fee, excepting out of the said grant two bovates which William son of John held, two bovates which John son of John held, and one and a half bovates which William de Capella held.¹ There had been some legal proceedings about this property, which Falconburg claimed as his right.³ A fine was levied in Michaelmas Term, 10 John, 1208, between Hugh de Lelay and Christiana his wife, plaintiffs, and Alan de Collum, defendant, touching four carucates of land in Lofthus and five bovates of land in Brakenholm, concerning which a recognition of great assize had been summoned between them. Alan admits the land to be the right of Christiana, and releases and quitclaims all his right to Hugh and Christiana and the heirs of the latter for ever. For this they have given him twenty marks of silver.³ This probably related to some of Christiana's property, which must have been very considerable.

In 1221 (see charter No. XLIV, ante), Hugh gave the church of Weston to S. Peter's at York, I cannot say how the Lelays became possessed of their Weston property. Weston, like Baildon, and several other places where the Lelays had lands, had formed part of the Archbishop's Domesday manor of Otley.

In Trinity Term, 8 Henry III, 1224, Robert de Percy complained of Henry de Percy, Walter de Percy, Hugh de Lillay, Richard de Lutrington, Robert de Plumton, Mathew de Brame, and others, for robbery and breach of the peace. None of them came. Among their manucaptors were Thomas fil. Ralph de Plumton, Mauger de Plumton, Roger Blundus, Gilbert fil. Norman, William de Stiveton, William de Plumton, William fil. Mathew (? de Brame), Walter fil. Mathew (? de Brame). This note may possibly refer to Hugh's son of the same name.

Hugh de Lelei was Bailiff of the West Riding, probably in King John's reign. In that capacity he witnessed an undated charter of William son of Michael de Brestwisel granting common of pasture in Denby to Byland Abbey; the grantor covenanted not to make more meadow in the common [fields] than there was in the time of King Richard; stated to be for the safety of his soul, and in consideration of five marks of silver which the monks gave him (i.e. William) in his great necessity.⁵

We must now consider Hugh's dealings with Baildon, which, though few, had a far-reaching effect on the history of the manor.

At the time of the Domesday Survey, we find that Baildon was divided into two parts, not then called manors, though they subsequently became so. One of these portions was parcel of the Archbishop's manor of Otley, the other belonged to Ernis de Burun's manor of Bingley. Hugh de Lelay, as will be seen presently, held both these moieties.

One moiety, it is doubtful which, he dealt with by the following deed, which was copied by Dodsworth from Sir Thomas Metham's evidences. Presumably it got into the possession of the Methams through the marriage of Sir Thomas de Metham with Elizabeth, daughter and eventually heiress of Sir Miles de Stapelton of Haddlesey, circa 1370. Adam de Nereford, Isolda's grandson by her second husband, sold his Baildon property to John de Stapelton in 1316.1

Ego, Hugo de Lelai, dedi Rogero Pictaviensi et Isoude, filie mee, uxori sue, totam medietatem ville de Baildon, tam in dominicis quam in serviciis, cum omnibus hominibus eiusdem terre, pro faciendo forinsecum servicium quantum pertinet ad duas carucatas terre unde xxvij carucate terre faciunt feodum unius militis. Testibus, Roberto Vavasore, Malgero Vavasore, Simone de Monte alto, etc.²

Translation.

I, Hugh de Lelay, have given to Roger Poitevin and Isolda my daughter, his wife, the whole half of the ville of Baildon, as well in demesnes as in services, with all the men of the same land, they doing the forinsec service as much as belongs to two carucates of land where twenty-seven carucates of land make a knight's fee.

The other moiety he appears to have given to his son William, though the deed evidencing the grant has not been preserved.

At some time subsequent to these gifts to his children, Hugh gave first one half, and then the whole, of his Baildon estate to S. Peter's at York, as is shown by the two following charters.

To all to whom these present letters shall come, Hugh de Lelai, greeting eternal in the Lord: Let the universe know that I, moved by divine love, and for the souls of all my ancestors and successors, and for the soul of Christiana my wife, have given to God and the Church of S. Peter, and the Canons there serving God, half the ville of Baildon, with the capital messuage, and all its appurtenances, without any retention, in free, pure and perpetual alms, and quit of all exaction and custom and secular service: And I, for myself and my heirs, have sworn on the Altar of S. Peter for myself and my heirs that we will warrant and defend the said alms to the said church, as pure alms, against all men: In witness whereof I have offered this present charter, sealed with my seal, upon the Altar of S. Peter. These being witnesses, Hamo the Treasurer of York, John the Chancellor, Master John Romanus, Master Nicholas, Peter of the Chapel, Gilbert de Mala palude, Richard the Chaplain, John de Thoueton clerk, Mathew de Mala palude, Alan his brother, David, Richard the Clerk of Master J. Translation.

To all the sons of Holy Mother Church to whom this present writing shall come, Hugh de Lelai, greeting eternal in the Lord: Let the universe know that I, moved by divine love, and for the souls of all my ancestors and successors, and for the soul of Christiana my wife, have given to God and the Church of S. Peter of York, and the Canons there serving God, the whole ville of Baildon, with the capital messuage, and all other appurtenances, without any retention, in pure, free and perpetual alms, and quit from all secular exaction and custom: And I, for myself and my heirs, have sworn on the Altar of S. Peter that I and my heirs will warrant and for ever defend, as pure alms, the alms of the said ville, against all men, and I will discharge all forinsec service as much as pertains to the said ville of Baildon out of my other lands: In witness whereof I have offered this present charter, sealed with my seal, upon the Altar of S. Peter: These being witnesses, Hamo the Treasurer of York, John the Chancellor, Master John Romanus, Peter of the Chapel, Nicholas, Gilbert and Richard, chaplains, John de Taueton, clerk, Matthew de Mala palude, Alan his brother, David, Richard the Clerk, Elias Pulain, Adam Biscop, Walter de Revestiar', William de Tumba, and many others.

By these two documents Hugh de Lelay parted with the whole of his interest in Baildon, so that the estates which he gave to two of his children (see ante) must have been granted previously. The first Charter, there can be little doubt, refers to the Bingley manor; the Otley manor being already held of the Archbishops. Then the second Charter passed all Hugh's remaining interest, so that the Archbishop stepped, as it were, into Hugh's shoes, and became the immediate landlord of all Hugh's tenants. Thus those who formerly held of Hugh, now held of the Archbishop.

Now as to the date of these two documents. The name of the Archbishop is unfortunately not mentioned, so that our only guide is the names of the witnesses. Happily some of these are officials whose dates are pretty well known. Hamo the Treasurer is the first witness to each charter; he was Treasurer in 1204 and 1215, and presumably between those dates. John the Chancellor, the second witness to each charter, filled that office in 1195 and 1199, and is almost certainly identical with John de S. Laurence, who was Chancellor in 1201. Both these witnesses' names appear on a charter of Simon, Dean of York, dated 1206. The reference to the soul of his wife implies that she was dead, and as she was living in 1208,2 the charters must be after that date, while the dates of the various witnesses show that it cannot have been much later. We shall therefore probably be not far wrong if we assign these two Baildon charters to somewhere about the year 1210.

In 1332, King Edward III confirmed all grants and concessions heretofore by various donors made to the Abbey of Rievaulx. Amongst them was the gift which Hugh son of William de Lethelai made of that meadow, with the appurtenances, in Baildona, which is near the beck (sikettum), on the southern side of the said beck.³

In the absence of witnesses it is impossible to fix the date of this grant, even approximately; all we can safely say is, that it must be earlier than the grant to S. Peter's circa 1210.

Hugh's wife, as we have already seen, was Christiana, daughter of Adam son of Norman of Rimmington and elsewhere in Craven. She had a considerable amount of property. Stainburn possibly belonged to her, since, in charter No. VIII above, Hugh mentions that she consented to his settling property there on their daughter Isolda. The Rimmington property must also have been hers, if, as seems clear, the Christiana de Pathorn, whose grant of land in Rimmington Hugh de Lelay confirmed, is identical with the Christiana afterwards his wife (charter No. XXXVIII). She was living in 1208.²

³ Patent Roll, 6 Edward III, part 2, m. 23.

There is some evidence that Hugh survived Christiana and married a second wife, named Emma. In an undated charter, No. LXIII, by which she confirmed all her husband's gifts to S. Leonard's Hospital at York, she calls herself Emma Darrell, late wife of Hugh de Lelay; but whether Darrell was her maiden name or that of a second husband, there is nothing to show.

Hugh's children will be seen in the pedigree.

He seems to have divided up his property among them, to some extent in his lifetime.

Adam, the heir, had Leathley and property at Rigton, Castley, Rimmington, Steeton and Hackenby.

Hugh had property at Burley, Bolton in Bowland, Weston, Rigton and Castley.

Roger had property at Leathley and Bramhope.

William had half Baildon.

Isolda had half Baildon, Stainburn, and probably property at Castley.

ROBERT DE LELAY, son of William and brother of the last mentioned Hugh, was probably younger than Hugh, and like him was a great benefactor to religious houses. His charters in the foregoing list are Nos. XXII, XXIII, relating to Stainburn; XXXVII, XXXVIII, XXXIII, XLIII, XLIII, XLIII, XLIII, XLVII, XLVIII, XLVIII, L, LXIV, LXVIII, and LXIX, relating to lands in Farnley (Otley), Bolton-in-Bowland, Ravensberth', Hackenby, Tadcaster, Nun Appleton, and Steeton, given to Fountains Abbey, Salley Abbey, S. Peter's, York, and Helaugh Park Priory. He nowhere mentions a wife, and there is no record of any children. A drawing of his seal will be found on the pedigree.

He witnessed his brother Hugh's gift of Weston Church to S. Peter's in 1221. (No. XLIV.)

In Easter Term, 1246, William son of William claimed against W. Archbishop of York six bovates of land in Farnelay as his right, in which the defendant has no entry save through Robert de Lelay, to whom William de Farnelay, the plaintiff's father (whose heir he is) demised that land for a term which is ended. The Archbishop defended, and said that he did not hold all the said six bovates, for Thomas son of Alan holds one and Ralph Kempe holds two. Judgment for the defendant; the plaintiff may have another writ.

In 1251, William son of William claimed two and a half acres of land Farley (sic, i.e. Farnley) as his right against Paulin son of Roger, which Paulin had no entry save through Roger le Ryche and Pobert de Lelay, to whom William son of Serlo (whose son and heir the plaintiff) demised the same for a term of years now ended, namely, from year to year at his will. The defendant admitted that his entry was through Roger le Ryche his father, and that Roger's entry was through Robert de Lelay, but said that Lelay's entry was through William son of Serlo, but through Richard de Scotton, ho was enfeoffed of the land by William son of Serlo. The plaintiff Paid half a mark for an enquiry; pledge, Robert de Pouele. Afterwards they agreed that Paulin and his heirs should hold the land of William and his heirs, paying twopence a year for all services.

ADAM DE LELAY, the eldest son and heir of Hugh and Christiana, was probably born soon after 1180. Very little is recorded of him. He did not apparently give any property to the monasteries. No doubt he thought that his inheritance had been already sufficiently diminished by such gifts.

He released his claim to half the mill of Rigton to his brother Hugh; charter No. 1. He had two sons, Adam and William.

ADAM DE LELAY, son and heir of Adam, is mentioned in Dodsworth's pedigree. He conveyed the manor of Leathley to Henry de Percy, as will be seen from the following charter:—

I, Adam son and heir of Adam de Lelay, for a certain sum of money, have quit-claimed to Sir Henry de Percy all my right in Lelay, with its appurtenances, Castelay, with its appurtenances, Reminton, with its appurtenances, Stiveton, with its appurtenances, and Hageneby, etc.².

Some legal proceedings long afterwards throw further light on the transaction.

In 1297 Henry de Percy sued the Prior of Helaugh Park to permit him to present a parson to a moiety of the church of Leathley. He says that Hugh de Letheley held the manor of Leatheley (to which the advowson belongs), and presented the last clerk, one Robert, who is now dead. Hugh demised to Richard de Loderyngton for life, and he assigned his interest to Henry de Percy, the plaintiff's father, whose heir is the plaintiff. From Hugh de Letheley the manor descended to his son and heir, Adam, and then to Adam's son and heir, another Adam. This last Adam de Letheley released all his right and claim to the said manor to the said Henry de Percy, the plaintiff's father, and from him it descended to John de Percy as son and heir, and from John, who died without issue, to Henry, the plaintiff, as brother and heir. The Prior says that Prior Henry, his predecessor, presented the last clerk, whose name was Walter. Jury.¹

As Hugh de Lelay had given the church to Helaugh Park, see charter No. Lxv, it seems probable that Percy's claim was unsuccessful

Adam also confirmed to Kirkstall Abbey all gifts of his ancestors in Bramhope (charter LII).

Nothing is known of any descendants. An Adam de Lethlay, chaplain, was fined 6s. 8d. for a trespass done to Agnes wife of Robert Stapel at Flasby in 1348,2 who may possibly have been a grandson.

WILLIAM DE LELAY, second son of Adam, by an undated charter, released all his right in a certain tenement in Leathley to Henry de Percy, his Lord.³

HUGH DE LELAY seems to have been the second son of Hugh and Christiana, though Dodsworth puts him third.

His charters are fairly numerous. By No. II he grants to Fountains Abbey half the mill of Rigton, which his brother Adam released to him by charter No. I. Nos. III, IV, V, VI and VII also relate to lands at Rigton, the last one being dated 1248.

No. xxxv is a confirmation charter to Salley Abbey, No. xLv to S. Peter's, York.

In 1225, Hugh son of Hugh de Lelay brought an assize concerning lands in Burgl' (Burley) against Brian de Insula. It was adjourned to the next eyre because Brian was engaged on the King's service in the perambulation of the forests. I have not found any further reference to the matter.

In Easter Term, 30 Henry III, 1246, Hugh de Lelay complained at Jeremiah le Maunsel had unjustly obstructed a certain road in urghelay thereby damaging Hugh's free tenement in Weston. The rry found that the obstruction had been made unjustly and without judgment of any court, and that Hugh's property was damaged the amount of half a mark. The obstruction was to be removed.

At the same assize the Prioress of (Nun) Appleton sued Hugh de elay to exonerate her from the services which Richard de Lutrington equired from her for the free tenement, viz.:—a carucate of land, hich she holds of Hugh in Castelay in frank-almoign. Hugh is ound to acquit her of all service, whereas Richard has distrained r scutage, suit of court, and other services. She claims £5 amages. Hugh admits the truth of all this, and agrees to judgment: amages, twenty shillings; pledge, Alan de Casterton.

At the same assize Richard de Benteley claimed against Hugh e Lelay ten tofts and three bovates of land (less one acre) in uterington, of which Cecily de Luterington (whose kinsman and eir Richard is) was seised in demesne the day that she died. Lugh vouched to warranty Richard de Luterington, who warranted to m and vouched to warranty Master Robert the Treasurer of York, it was not able to show why he should warrant. License of concord.⁵

Hugh seems to have sold his Weston property to Robert de opham sometime before 1249, and after 1246 (see above).

In 1249-50, the keepers of the Jews' chest at York are commanded to take out of it a charter of Hugh de Lelay, which is there is a pledge to the Jews, the security being lands in Weston, which Robert de Stopham has bought from Hugh. They are to deliver up the said charter to the bearer of these letters on behalf of Stopham.¹

Hugh appears to have married a widow with a daughter.

In 1247 Hugh de Lelay and Anna his wife were summoned to answer Richard le Maunsel, who claimed that they should hold to an agreement made between them concerning the manor of Methelegh, with the appurtenances. Richard says that they agreed to give him the said manor with Anna, daughter of the said Anna, in [frank] marriage, and now refuse to do so. Hugh and Anna came, and the matter was adjourned to Hilary Term.²

There is no positive evidence that this Hugh de Lelay had any sons. Charter No. LI suggests that he may have had a son Hugh, but it is not very clear, and if so, Hugh the son must have died young. At any rate, nothing further is known about him. Hugh seems to have had two daughters, Margery and Alice, both of whom had some property at Leathley, but what or how does not appear. The former, Margery, married William son of Jordan de Lelay, and Alice married William Saracen of York; see charters Nos. Lx and LxI, the latter of which is dated 1258.

Of William Saracen and his wife I know nothing further, not can I say who William son of Jordan de Lelay may have been, unless as has been previously suggested, he was a grandson of the first William de Lelay (ante p. 17). He and his brother Walter are mentioned in 1278.3 A William son of Jordan de Letheley was living in 1329,4 but this must be a different person. Walter de Leathley above-mentioned, brother of William, was probably settled at Carlton near Otley. By a charter, apparently granted in the last quarter of the thirteenth century, Rametta daughter of Walter de Laleye of Karletun, gives to S. Leonard's Hospital, York, an acre of meadow in the territory of Bramhope, which she had by the gift of Ralph her brother.5

arter may perhaps refer to the earlier William son of Hugh; it is almost to decide with so few names of witnesses. Dodsworth, however, to the later William, as I have done in the text, and the subsequent he Baildon property seems almost imperative that it should be so.

he acted as attorney for Eva de Swillington in a fine relating to land in Stainburn (see post). This is all the information I can give about him, except that, according to Dodsworth's pedigree, he married, and had a son, also named William.

Hugh de Lelay, son of the first William de Lelay, had one daughter, named Isolda, to whom he gave half the ville of Baildon, and other property. The grant has already been set out, and it will be more convenient to postpone any account of her for the moment.

There still remains one person who must be mentioned,—a somewhat mysterious person, whose exact relationship to the Lelays is very obscure. I refer to the lady who describes herself indifferently as Eva daughter of William the Palmer (palmarius) of Swillington, Eva daughter of William de Swillington, or Eva de Lelay.

Her parentage seems clear; she was the daughter of one William, probably one of the Swillingtons of Swillington near Leeds, who, having made some pilgrimage, was designated "the Palmer." She acquired land in Stainburn from William son of William the Clerk of Stainburn (charters xxvI and xxvII), and is probably the Eva mentioned in charter IX as having a house there. This property she granted to Fountains Abbey by charters xxvIII and xxiX; in the former she is described as Eva daughter of William le Palmer of Swillington, in the latter as Eva de Lelay. She is there stated to convey in her lawful power, in legitima potestate, a term generally used in conveyances by widows, the reason being that a married woman could not dispose of her own property without her husband's consent. It would seem, then, that she married a Lelay, who was dead at the date of this second grant. In the Fountains Abber Chartulary after the first of these two deeds, No. xxvIII, is copied a note of a fine levied in 1226, which is as follows:-

In Michaelmas Term, 11 Henry III, 1226, a fine was levied between Eva de Swillington, plaintiff, by William de Lelay put in her place to win or lose, and John, Abbat of Fountains, defendant, touching four bovates and five acres three roods of land in Stainburn. Eva quit-claims for herself and her heirs all her right in the said land to the Abbat and his successors for ever, for which he gave her three marks of silver.¹

If we may take the order of these documents as a guide, charter xxvIII was before Michaelmas, 1226, and charter xxIX was after that date. Now in this fine it will be noticed that Eva de Swillington, as she is there called, appears by William de Lelay, her attorney. I think he must have been her husband, notwithstanding the fact that she still uses her maiden name. In the next deed she calls herself "de Lelay," and uses words consistent with her being a widow; so that William, if my surmise is right, must have died soon after 1226.

Eva's grant to Fountains was confirmed by William son of Ralph (charter xxx). One of her grants to Fountains is in the possession of Mr. F. H. Fawkes of Farnley; she grants the land, together with her body to be buried at Fountains. Witnesses, Nigel de Plumpton, Hugh de Suinlington, William de Lelai (who may have been her husband's son of that name), Henry de Castelleia, Simon de Pouele (Pool), and others. The seal is still remaining, and bears three flowers or branches, probably palm, as a canting device or rebus, with the legend + SIGILL: EVE: FILIE: WILELMI.

It may here be noted that an Eva widow of John sued Hugh de Baildon for dower in a carucate of land in Castley in 1206-7. The Lelays had property in Castley (see charters XXXIII, LXVII and LXX.

We must now return to Isolda, who, so far as is known, was the only daughter of Hugh and Christiana. She was twice married, first to Roger Pictavensis or Poitevin, and secondly to Adam de Nereford. She left issue by both husbands. The first marriage must have taken place before her father's grant of Baildon to S. Peter's, that is, before airca 1210. She would then be about twenty years of age. Her father's gifts to her of two carucates in Baildon and the ville of Stainburn have already been set out (ante, p. 20, and charter No. VIII). Soon after her first marriage, and presumably before the death of her first husband [air. 1224], we find Isolda making a purchase of land on her own account.

Henry de Castellay has sold and confirmed to Isolda, wife of Roger Pictavensis, and her heirs, a bovate of land in Castellay, viz.:—that which Robert son of Huckeman² held, lying between my

Presumably about the same time, Roger purchased some land in Stainburn, no doubt in order to improve his wife's property there As the charter is unprinted and in private hands, and moreover contains an interesting note of one of the early Baildons, it is here transcribed in full:-

Roger Poitevin appears to have died about 1224; at any rate, his widow was married again in 1225. During the period of her widow-hood she, by an undated charter, gave the ville of Stainburn, containing five carucates, to Fountains Abbey. This grant was confirmed by Hugh son of William de Lelay, her father, and by Roger Poitevin, her grandson.

The confirmation of the grant by the donor's father was rendered necessary by the fact that Isolda's tenancy was in frank-marriage. By this tenure the land was given to the donee and her husband and the heirs of their two bodies, free from all manner of service to the donor or his heirs until the fourth degree of consanguinity from the donor was passed, the oath of fealty only excepted. But on failure of the heirs of the marriage, the property reverted to the donor or his heirs.

Isolda's second husband was one Adam de Nereford, and she was married to him sometime before Martinmas, 1225.

1225, Martinmas. Fine between Adam de Nerford and Isolda his wife, plaintiffs, and William de Coleby, deforciant, of one third of half a carucate of land in Scardingwell, which Isolda claims as dower of the inheritance of Roger Pictavensis, her late husband; Adam and Isolda release all their claim to William and his heirs, for which he tives them four marks of silver.

Roger Poitevin and Isolda had two children, Thomas, and Hawisia, who married Robert de Stopham.

THOMAS POITEVIN seems to have been the only son of his marents; he was probably born not later than 1213, as he appears to have been of age in 1234, when he commenced the litigation especting his property.⁵ Indeed it was no doubt on his coming of ge that the various disputes first arose.

⁵ He and his son Roger had numerous lawsuits, but the greater part of them do t concern the subject of this paper.

In 1234 he settled a dispute relating to some property in Castley, possibly given him by his mother, by the following fine:—

1234, December. Fine between Thomas Pictavensis, plaintiff, and Hugh de Montealto, deforciant, of half a mill in Castellay. Hugh admits the property to be the right of Thomas, and Thomas grants it to Hugh and his heirs, to hold of Thomas and his heirs for ever, paying 8s. 4d. yearly for all service.

In 1235 Thomas Poitevin, Isolda's son by her first marriage, granted his Baildon property to Isolda and Adam de Nereford, her second husband, by the following fine:—

This is the final concord made in the King's Court at York on the Friday next after the feast of S. Hilary, 19 Henry III [1235] Between Thomas Poitevin [Pictavensis], demandant, and Adam de Nereford and Isolda his wife, tenants, by William Malebisse, put in the place of Isolda to win or lose, concerning half the Manor of Beylden with the appurtenances, whereof an assize of mort d'ancester was summoned between them in the same Court, To wit, that Adam and Isolda admit that all the said half with the appurtenances is the right of Thomas, And for this admission, fine and concord, the said Thomas has granted the said half [Manor] with the appurtenances to Adam and Isolda, To have and to hold to them, as they previously held it, for all the life of the said Isolda, And moreover Thomas has granted for himself and his heirs the said half [Manor] with the appurtenances, after the death of Isolda, to Hugh de Nereford, eldest son of Adam and Isolda, and to the heirs of his body, of him and his wife married to him begotten, for ever, To have and to hold to Hugh and the heirs of his body, of him and his wife married to him begotten, of the said Thomas and his heirs for ever, doing therefor forinsec service, as much as belongs to that half [Manor], for service and exaction, So nevertheless that if the said Hugh shall di without heir of his body and of his wife married to him begotten then all the said half [Manor], with the appurtenances, shall reven to Thomas and his heirs, quit from other heirs of the said Hugh for

This document has a further interest, inasmuch as it is the first notice of Baildon as a "manor."

ROGER POITEVIN, son of Thomas, appears to have been born nut 1230. He seems to have been an extravagant and somewhat bulent character. Almost the earliest dated notices we have of 1 show him to be in difficulties. In 1259 he had mortgaged the nor of Towton for £200, and in 1271 he had to borrow money n his aunt, Hawisia de Stopham, to buy a horse. He took the e of the Barons in their war with Henry III, and his property ered in consequence. In 1276 he was in prison in Corfe Castle. In 1269 there was a serious riot in consequence of an attempt levy some Royal dues on Roger's land at Saxton and Towton. King's Bailiff was assaulted and wounded, and finally carried off Pontefract Castle, where he was kept in prison.

He probably came of age in 1250 or 1251, when he took up his er's career of litigation.

1251, Michaelmas. Roger le Peytefin claimed against Hugh et a rent of 3s. per annum in Syntehal [Snydall], in which Hugh no entry except through Adam de Neyrford and Isolda his wife, whom Thomas le Peytefin (whose son and heir the plaintiff is) ed the same for a term of years which has now expired. The endant vouched Adam de Neyrford to warrant, and he did rant. Jury.²

One of his first acts was to try to upset some of the pious of his ancestors to monastic and charitable foundations.

1251, Michaelmas. Roger le Peytevyn gave 20s. for a license of cord with the Abbat of Fountains in a plea touching the manor Staynburn.³

Roger le Peytevin, who brought an assize of novel disseisin inst the Master of S. Leonard's Hospital, York, touching a ment and common of pasture in Saxton, withdrew. He and pledges, William le Peytevin of Haling⁴ [sic] and Roger the rk of Saxton, are amerced.⁵

The attempt to oust the monks of Fountains from the property Stainburn, which his grandmother had given them, evidently id; accordingly we find Roger facing the situation and confirming, what grace he could, the gift which he was unable to upset.

The attempt on S. Leonard's Hospital failed, as that on Fountains had done, and Roger again confirmed what he was unable to gainsay.

Roger son of Thomas Peytevin confirms all the gifts of Roger and Thomas Peytevin, his ancestors, to S. Leonard's Hospital, York, in Saxton and Woodhouse. Dated 15 Kal. July, 1260.²

I am not aware that either Roger or his brother Robert left any issue, but if they did, they had ceased to have any interest in Lelay property, and we need not pursue them further.

Isolda, by her second husband, left a son, Hugh de Nereford, (see the Fine of 1235). His son, Adam de Nereford the second, as already stated, sold his Baildon property to John de Stapleton in 1316.

The surname of Leathley is not yet extinct, but, so far as I am aware, there is nothing to show the connection of the later Leathleys with the earlier generations of this interesting Yorkshire family. They may possibly have descended from some of the younger sons I have mentioned.

One Thomas de Leathley was Constable of Skipton Castle, aircretemp. Edward I,3 and a John Leathley was Sheriff of the City of York in 1468.4

I have not found any evidence as to the Leathley arms.

G. D. LUMB.

Iustice's Pote-Book of Captain Iohn Pickering, 1656-60.

APTAIN JOHN PICKERING, the writer of the note-book of which ne first portion is printed below, resided at Tingley House, near Voodkirk, and was an officer of some note during the Commonrealth, serving as a captain of dragoons. He married Deborah, laughter of Horace Eure, and sister to George and Ralph, successively Lord Eure. The births of Captain Pickering's children are entered in the Woodkirk Register, with one exception, and are as follows:—Bethia, born 4 November, 1652; Bathshua, born 12 May, 1654; Hannah, born 6 March, 1655-6, and buried 13 February, 1656-7, in the Topcliffe burying ground; Mercy, baptized at Topcliffe Chapel, 24 August, 1657; and Elizabeth, born 1 April, and buried 17 April, 2659, at Topcliffe.

Bethia was married at Woodkirk Church on the 30th July, 1673, to Joseph Sykes, of Leeds, merchant, whose niece, Anna, third Laughter of his eldest brother, Richard Sykes, of Leeds, married Ralph Thoresby.

Bathshua was married to John Lister, dissenting minister, on the 15 November, 1682 (Heywood's Register), and was buried at Tingley, 24 February, 1732-3.

Mercy was married to Thomas Elston, minister at Topcliffe, on he 3rd February, 1685-6, at Woodkirk Church, and two of their hildren were baptized there, viz. Hananiah, 15 January, 1695-6, and oseph, 10 February, 1696-7.

Captain Pickering died on the 18th of April, 1699, aged 74, and is wife Deborah died 5 November, 1693, aged 69, and they are both terred at the burying ground at Tingley. The site was near his residence, and was presented by him to his co-religionists. His tombstone may still be seen there, with four others, in a plantation on the crest of a small ridge and near to a pond.

In 1642, although then apparently only 18 or 19 years old. Pickering was employed by Parliament on an expedition into Scotland, and a warrant was issued on the 28 February, 1642-3, by the Committee of Safety of the Kingdom, to the Treasurer of the Army, to pay to him £180 for expenses. That amount was still unpaid on the 3 November, 1643, as on that date another Warrant was issued to the Treasurer of Wars to pay £100 out of the money received by him from Anthony Wither, being the proceeds of a silver cistern seized from Sir Richard Hubbard, to Mr. John Pickering, in part payment of £180 due to him for service in Scotland. The £100 was duly paid, and on the 11 November, 1643, Edward Pickering gave a receipt for it, by payment of William Jessop, to the use of his brother, John Pickering.

On the 6 May, 1645, it was ordered by the Committee of both Kingdoms that Pickering should receive two months' pay as a captain of dragoons, out of the £400 raised upon granado shells.

On the 4 September, 1645, the Committee wrote to Robert, Earl of Warwick, that they had heard and determined the difference between Captains Pickering and Langrish concerning the troop raised out of the overplus horse of the several counties, and found that Captain Pickering was nominated by the Committee of the Eastern Association, having power to do so by ordinance, and he had accordingly received a commission from this Committee to command that troop. They desired the Earl to give order accordingly to that troop to march under the command of Captain Pickering. On the 6 May, 1646, Pickering was despatched with his troop to King's Lynn.

Pickering is not mentioned again in the Calendars of State Papers, from which the preceding extracts are taken, until after Cromwell's death, when, on the 9 July, 1659, he was required to report the number and condition of his troop and place of rendezvous.

He and others signed a petition to Cromwell, dated at York, 8 January, 1655-6, for instructions respecting various persons in office not well affected to the "publique peace and p'sent government, and to the good people who contributed their assistance in time of crouble and danger against the common enemy," and stating that a number of the gentry had been secured in the garrison of Hull.¹

Shortly afterwards, 20 August, 1656, he was sworn to execute the office of a Justice of the Peace in the West Riding, probably as a consequence of the petition, and the note-book which follows is an interesting record of the matters brought before him, and of the customs and habits of the seventeenth century. The marriages are especially valuable, as it is believed that the registers of some of the parishes mentioned are defective for the years 1656 to 1660. For example, the only marriages recorded in the Woodkirk Register during those years are the following:—

- 1656. Gulielmus Aviard cum Maria Browne, Septem. die 28^{vo}.
 Thomas Copley cum Margreta Lee, Octobris die 19^{no}.
 Johannes Dymond cum Jana Greenwood, Dec. die 7^{mo}.
- Josuah Astwick cum Alice Brogden, July 28vo.
 Johannes Dransfield cum Anne Pearson, Sept. 29.
 Dom: Christo: Marshall cum Sarah Neaustead, Nov. die 16°.

It will be noticed that the marriage in the church often preceded by a few days the civil marriage recorded in the MS.

The Rev. Oliver Heywood would be intimately acquainted with Pickering. On the 9 July, 1677, Heywood breakfasted with Pickering, and on the 11 January, 1686, visited him. In 1678 Heywood records in his Diary that Pickering and the pastor at Topcliffe took the part of Joseph Jackson in a civil dissension between two brethren about a horse which had died when on loan, respecting which several church meetings had been held. Pickering was appointed with Heywood by the will of Mr. Gamaliel Marsden (who was teacher at the church at Topcliffe, and had married, first, a young woman worth £40 a year, and secondly, Mr. Marshall's widow, "lived plentifully, comfortably, dyed with honour, was buryed May 27, 1681, left a competent estate to his friends, wife having no child") to assist his widow to distribute £20 to poor ministers, widows, scholars, godly poor.²

EDWARD PICKERING, the brother of the Captain, was also a person of some consequence. On the 11th November, 1645,³ Prince Rupert and Prince Maurice, with the gentlemen attending them, having disengaged themselves from the King's service, were desirous to obtain passes from Parliament to go beyond the seas, and it wa ordered by the Committee of both Kingdoms that Edward Pickerin do signify to Prince Rupert that both Houses of Parliament have granted a pass for his Highness and for Prince Maurice, beside such officers and gentlemen of quality, with their servants, horses, and necessary baggage, as Prince Rupert shall name and deliver a list thereof to Mr. Pickering, to pass freely and quietly to the several ports of Yarmouth, Dover, Rye, and Southampton, or to any of them, within 14 days next after the Prince shall receive his pass, so that they come not through the city of London, nor within the lines of communication, and shall transport themselves at the first opportunity out of the King's dominions, having engaged themselves upon their honours and subscribed that they will never more bear arms or act anything against both Houses or against the Estates of Scotland. A convoy was to be appointed when the list of persons was received by the Committee and the port signified to which they intended to go

Prince Rupert having asked for some modification, Mr. Edward Pickering was, on the 22nd November, desired to deliver to the Prince a letter signifying that the Houses would not recede from what was formerly agreed upon, and that if their offer was not accepted within 14 days they should hold themselves free from the former engagements, and Pickering was then to return to the Committee.

On the 9 December, 1645, the Committee wrote to Prince Rupe mentioning that Pickering had been despatched with the letters 22nd November, and that they were informed he went from Evesha to Worcester on the 27th. The time appointed for his stay h elapsed, and they had not heard anything of him. They doubt not but being employed to his Highness, the latter would be care that Pickering should be safely returned unto them. On the 10 December the Committee wrote to the Committee of Evesham they desired that a trumpeter should be sent to the Governor Worcester, to demand an account of Mr. Pickering. More is 1 known, as the Calendars do not refer to him again.

Captain Pickering's Note-Book measures 11\frac{1}{2}\text{in.} \times 7\frac{1}{2}\text{in.}, and written on 54 leaves. At the top of the first page Thoresby I written:—"Cosⁿ Elstons gift to Ralph Thoresby, da: of this Cap^t] Pickering." In the copy which follows the entries of certain offenagainst morality have been much curtailed.

Plan of Leeds, 1806.

THE plan of Leeds which I have been asked to describe is dated 1806, and appears to rank next in point of time after the second of the two which were reproduced in Volume IX of the Society's Transactions, and so well described by Colonel Wilson! It was found amongst some papers which had belonged to my grandfather, Thomas Benson Pease, who died in 1846, and who, though not, I believe, a native of the town, lived all his life in Leeds, and took a very active interest in its affairs. He was one of the Commissioners named in the Leeds Improvement Act of 1824, which authorised the removal of "the Middle Row."

The plan was published by John Heaton, who was a well known bookseller and publisher in Leeds, but there is no internal evidence as to its author. He can hardly have been a surveyor of any note, since the work is extremely crude; indeed the principal streets might have been traced by a ruler, they are so extraordinarily straight and generally at right angles to each other. From the point of view of accuracy in delineation, the plan is almost valueless; but it interesting as a link between its predecessor of 1771, and the beautiful survey of 1815 by Netlam and Francis Giles; and # illustrating the growth of the town. The Leeds of 1771, as shews by the map of that date, is very little different from the Leeds of Thoresby's time, as portrayed by the earlier map, which is dated 172! by Colonel Wilson. Some of the main roads have more building alongside them, but there is no laying out of streets or appropriation of fields and gardens for building purposes. In 1806, after # interval of thirty-five years which separates the plan of 1771 from that now under consideration, a great change has come over the town. On every side we see expansion, though on the north an south less building has taken place than on the west and eas Commercial Street (called Bond Street at its eastern end) has been from Briggate to Albion Street, and all the ground to the west Lands Lane, which in 1771 appears as fields and gardens, has in laid out in streets and squares. To the east of the Parish turch, the Mill Garth and the land adjoining Timble Beck have arly all been built over.

The town is no longer in that condition which induced Leland o and a half centuries before to say it was not so quick as radford, but has started on the career of prosperity which is to paracterise it for the next hundred years.

It is impossible now to decide whether the publisher had any lefinite purpose in issuing this plan. I thought at first it might ave been intended to illustrate a directory or guide to the town. The directory of 1797 was published by Thomas Wright, the proprietor of the Leeds Intelligencer, who lived in New Street leading to St. John's Church, and had a bookseller's shop in Briggate. believe subsequent editions were published, and indeed my copy (which belonged to Griffith Wright) is corrected in manuscript for 1798, as if for the printer. But I do not know that John Heaton had any business connection with the Wrights, or that he ever himself published a directory or guide. The Leeds Guide of 1806 was printed by Edward Baines "for the Author." The reprint of 1808 was printed by John Ryley, and sold by (amongst others) J. Heaton. But it has no plan. Nor has the little compilation entitled "A Walk through Leeds," dated 1806 and published by John Heaton. The directory of 1817, which was published by Edward Baines, has no plan of Leeds, and I know of no intermediate work of that kind. One must conclude, in the absence of further evidence, that the issue of this plan was a venture on the part of John Heaton, inconnected with any particular object. And I think the edition nust have been very limited, as I never saw or heard of a copy refore.

Turning now to the plan itself, we find that Briggate still ends at he Middle Row, and that the Prison still stands on the south side of Kirkgate. It was not removed till 1813, when the new Court House and Prison in Park Row was completed. The Middle Row ras removed in 1825 under the powers of the Improvement Act of 824. So long before as 1765 these buildings were felt to be an aconvenience, as appears by the following from the Leeds Intelligencer, o September, 1765:—"The inhabitants at the Back of the Shambles began last week to take in their Shop windows and pull down their Penthouses in order to make a better Passage for carriages; the "want of which has been long and loudly complained of: but much "more to the credit of this opulent town wou'd it be to purchase "the whole Pile of Buildings which are in the Middle and so greatly "obstruct the passage of that otherwise noble street (Briggate)...."

The new street opposite Kirkgate and extending to Albion Street is called Bond Street on our map as far as Lands Lane, and thenceforward Commercial Street. It is so named in the plan of 1815 and in Charles Fowler's plan of 1821, and it was not till the extension to Park Row was carried out, some time between 1821 and 1826, that the present names were bestowed. Commercial Street from Albion Street to Lands Lane must have been laid out some time before the Bond Street of our map. Mr. C. D. Hardcastle, in his paper on "Leeds in my Grandfather's Days," says that on the 12th April, 1806, all the materials of the tenements in Briggate, lately occupied by Mr. Hugh Bell and nine under-tenants, were advertised for sale: "This range will be pulled down forthwith, to make a projected "new street from Briggate to Commercial Street." Probably Commercial Street was laid out about the same time as Albion Street. The plan of 1821 shews a projected extension of Commercial Street in a straight line across Albion Street to Park Row, but this must have been abandoned for some reason and the present curved street constructed before 1826, as it is so shewn in Fowler's plan of that date. The Bond Street of to-day, from Park Row to East Parade, was constructed before 1821, and was in the first place called Russell Street. In the early years of the last century, a sedan chair was kept for hire in a cellar in Commercial Street, and my mother, who was born in 1814 remembered riding in it as a child. The following advertisement, taken from the Leeds Mercury of November 3rd, 1804, shews that Commercial Street was not yet a street of shops:—"To be let two "newly-erected messuages in Commercial Street, Leeds, each containing "2 good cellar kitchens with oven grates and pots therein, 2 rooms on "the ground floor with 6 lodging rooms above Commercial "Street is one of the most pleasing airy and healthful situations in "Leeds and very convenient for trade and market."

Our plan shews the whole of the land in these two streets at built over, but this cannot have been the case, as in the map of 1815 there is vacant ground in both of them.

The inns in Briggate are much the same as in 1771, but the old King's Arms is soon to disappear from the list. It was kept in 1797 by J. Hick, but in January, 1813, it had ceased to be an inathe building is still standing, and is occupied by Mr. Bean, the and others, but it has been acquired by the Corporation removed in the widening of Duncan Street. It was the oting in 1753, when the people resisted the introduction of and in front of this house, in which the magistrates met to the military fired with fatal effect upon the mob. In 1797 ave been the principal coaching house in the town, since es left for London and other places, while from no other lore than three depart. It belonged to Joseph Wood, a 3riggate, who gave his name to Wood Street (now demolished eds Estates Company), and who dwelt in St. Peter's Square, nained in his descendants' possession till the Corporation down Briggate the name "Hotel" appears. In the Directory inder the heading "Inns, Tavern," &c., is the following:—arah Greaves, Briggate." It is curious as being the only ed a hotel, and was probably the first to be so designated. it is the same as the Royal Hotel, so long kept by In the map of 1815, it is called Greaves' Hotel.

Lane presents very much the same appearance in our plan t of 1771, except that the ground between what is now reet and Bank Street is apparently built over. ot yet in existence, but it was laid out very soon afterwards. st come across some particulars of sale, dated 1809, of elonging to Richard Lee, a merchant and manufacturer, and irs to have been also receiver of land tax and other duties. default in his accounts, and a writ of extent was sued out n in the Court of Exchequer, under which his lands were sold by the Deputy Remembrancer. Lot VII is described pital messuage situate on the south side of Boar Lane s now in the occupation of John Kemplay with the ler's shop occupied by Henry Dodsworth," and other "with the yard and part of the garden containing 900 ards or thereabouts including 240 yards now staked off on side of the said yard and garden for the purpose of part of a certain intended new street of 15 feet wide or its to be called Union Street and to lead from Boar Lane into a certain other intended new street of 26 feet wide ibouts to be called Fenton Street."

follow other lots of land, some abutting upon Union Street on Fenton Street, with rights of way for some of the latter thite Horse Yard, and for all of them through a covered to Briggate.

It seems to me clear that Union Street is the present Street. John Kemplay seems to have bought Lots VII and and I find from the Directory of 1817 that John and Mary Kearried on a "ladies' seminary" in Alfred Street; and from 1826 that John and Mary Kemplay and Daughters carried "ladies' boarding and day boarding seminary," at 18, Boar Lan house was probably at the corner of Boar Lane and Alfred with the entrance from the latter street. It cannot have be name Union Street very long, and the change was no doubt avoid confusion with another street of the same name near Garth. But why it was renamed Alfred Street I cannot Fenton Street, which was to run at right angles to Union is clearly the present Wormald's Yard. I have not met with of the sale plan referred to in these particulars.

There was a school in Boar Lane in 1765, as appears following extract from the Leeds Intelligencer of 24th Septe "At the Boarding School in Boar Lane, Leeds, Young Li "genteelly boarded and carefully instructed in all kinds of Ne "upon reasonable Terms, By Mrs. Dawson and proper A "The Young Ladies are also instructed in the following la "viz. English and French, grammatically; Writing and Ari "Modern Geography; Drawing; Music and Dancing, by able "....... N.B. The above situation is airy and pleasant, "greatest part of the leisure Hours, allowed to the Young La "employed in such amusements as are both useful and enter

This school must have been afterwards removed to Park in the Directory of 1797 the name of "Mrs. Dawson, boarding "Park Row," occurs.

Richard Lee, above referred to, acquired the house in Bounder the will of his aunt, Mrs. Jane Shepley, who died in 1 whose maiden name was Markham. He lived at the l Woodhouse Lane, now occupied by the Girls' High School bought the site in 1795, and probably erected the house so wards. It was sold in 1811 to Philemon Land,—who is a distiller and brandy merchant, of 27, Woodhouse Lan Directory of 1817.

Mr. Hardcastle tells us that the formation of Trinity Sthus announced in the Leeds Mercury of the 17th August, the inhabitants of this town and neighbourhood of Leeds. The is hereby given, that Mr. Richardson, of Burley Lodge, ends in the month of May next (if not sooner) to open a foot rise and carriage way from Boar Lane, along Trinity Lane, into inds Lane, for the convenience of the said town and neighbourhod, and which intended public road will communicate with figgate, Commercial Street, Bank Street, and Albion Street." This street is shewn on our map, and styled Trinity Lane. It is so wribed in the Directory of 1817, but as Trinity Street in that of 6; though, curiously enough, it is Trinity Lane in the accomping map. The advertisement shews, however, that a street known Frinity Lane already existed. It is not mentioned in 1797.

Albion Street is shewn as laid out from Upperhead Row to Boar e, though not yet entirely built up on both sides. The old sic Hall now occupied by Messrs. Denby & Co. was built in 1792, appears by the following extract from the Leeds Intelligencer of 9th, 1792:—"We have the pleasure to inform our readers that the st stone of the intended Concert Room was laid on Monday last uly 2nd) in the street now making from Boar Lane to Upperhead Dw, and which, we understand, is to be called Albion Street." The ts Lane of the map of 1815 (now Basinghall Street) is here styled ick of Park Row," and is no doubt the same street as is marked ill Hill Lane" in the map of 1725. There is nothing as yet ted on the open ground surrounded by Park Row, South Parade East Parade, but these streets are otherwise built up. Park

East Parade, but these streets are otherwise built up. Park are is in nearly the same condition as in 1815. For some on it is called St. Paul's Square in the Guide of 1806 and the int of 1808; though in the Directory of 1797 I find the Reverend 25 Atkinson, minister of St. Paul's, Park Square; and in the Walk ugh Leeds of 1806, it is called Park Square.

Crossing Leeds Bridge we find Simpson's Fold, now Dock Street, our left. Here dwelt Joseph Blackburn, the attorney who was ged at York in 1815 for forging stamps on deeds. The name ne street would appear to have been derived from a family named oson, or Sympson, who lived there and probably owned the site very early period. In the register of baptisms at the Parish rich we find, "1573, August 23, Elizabeth, child of Robert pson, Bryge end;" and in the register of burials for 1692, Simpson Fold is described as Bridge end. A Robert (probably the same) appears in the Subsidy Roll of Elizabeth (1596-7) as the owner of lands in Leeds Mainriding were valued at thirty shillings, the highest assessment but one division in respect of lands. So that he must have been a lof consequence.

A little further on we come to Gray's Walk, now Grey The former mode of spelling the name is probably correct, as no doubt derived from the family of Gray, formerly of Leeds Kippax (see Platt and Morkill's Whitkirk, p. 89), who owned there. Edward Gray was Mayor of Leeds in 1749 and 1768.

The suburbs of the town are very imperfectly portrayed in plan, and the roads are laid out with very little regard for accult is disappointing as a picture of Leeds, the more it is exam as one feels how little reliance is to be placed upon it, whethe regards it from the point of view of the position of the streof the buildings abutting upon them.

I am greatly indebted to Mr. Lumb, the painstaking Secretary of the Society, for the references to the Leeds Intellicand Leeds Mercury and other sources of information.

Thoresby Society.

REPORT FOR 1900.

THE Council of the Thoresby Society have the pleasure to present their Twelfth Annual Report. During the year one ife and sixteen Annual Members have joined the Society, and he number on the Roll at the end of the year was 322, of thom 49 were Life and 273 Annual.

Further parts of the "Miscellanea" and "Leeds Parish Church Legisters" have been issued to the members for the year 1898. The "Miscellanea" contained an Account of Mangy's Trial, with lotes; a paper on Bramhope, and further portions of local Wills, roved 1527 to 1531; Leeds Manor Rolls, Musters in Skyrac Vapentake, with Notes; and Lay Subsidies of Agbrigg and Morley Vapentakes.

During the summer successful excursions were made to Edlingon, Conisbrough Castle and Church and Sprotborough Church, to Helmsley Castle and Rievaulx Abbey, and to Cowthorpe, Walton, Vighill and Marston Moor, under the skilful guidance of Messrs. Barran, Witherby, Kitson, Braithwaite and Clark.

The Council regret that they have lost by death the valuable ervices of their colleague, Mr. William Henry Broadhead, who was ne of their most useful members, especially in regard to photographing nd noting old buildings in Leeds, and to regular attendance at neetings.

The Council gratefully acknowledge gifts from their View President, Mr. J. H. Wurtzburg, of 20 valuable sepia drawings of the battlefields of Yorkshire, by Wagstaffe, in a mahogany case; from the Government Stationery Office, 84 volumes,—being 1 vol. Close Roll Edward II (1307–1313); 75 vols. Chronicles; 4 vols. Record Works and 4 vols. Scottish Records. Three framed engravings,—views of Cld Leeds,—from the Rev. N. Egerton Leigh; an old Leeds School Book, from Mr. J. R. Ford; and one engraving from Mr. Denison.

Special reference must be made to a very important questi with which the Council have had to deal during the past ye Among the objects for which the Society was established first-named in the Rules is the collection and preservation of bod and other objects relating to the town and neighbourhood of Lee It is obvious that it is not possible to do much in this direction until a home has been secured for the Society. The Council be had this matter under consideration from the formation of t Society, but it was not until the year 1896 that an opportuni presented itself of securing satisfactory premises in conjunction the Yorkshire Archæological Society. These premises formed p of the Old Medical School, No. 10, Park Street, and they secured for a term of five years from the 1st of November, 18 at a rent of £43 per annum. The remainder of the Media School Estate, extending to nearly three-quarters of the whole are was and still is occupied as a clothing factory; but it was one the terms of the lease that the Societies were to have the option at any time during the five years' term of purchasing the who premises for £3,000. It has been deemed desirable that this option should be exercised, and, with the concurrence of the members the Yorkshire Archæological Society, this has been done.

Excursions.

EDLINGTON, CONISBOROUGH, AND SPROTBOROUGH.

MAY 26TH, 1900.

(No. 28.) For the first excursion in 1900, to Edlington Church, Conisborough Church and Castle, and Sprotborough Church, Mr. J. N. Barran acted as guide, and spoke of the historical facts, and Mr. J. Bilson, F.S.A., described the architecture. The party drove from Doncaster, visited the places in the above order, took tea at the Star Inn, in Conisborough, and returned to Doncaster. They left Leeds 1-10, and arrived in Leeds about 8-45. The district in which this excursion lies is rich in historical and antiquarian interest, and bears evidence (e.g. in its place-names and the fosse in Edlington wood) of very early settlements. It falls just within the point where the magnesian limestone meets the coal measures, and still possesses much picturesqueness of feature, particularly in the wooded valley of the Don between Conisborough and Sprotborough.

EDLINGTON.

Edlington Manor, "the town of the Atheling or younger son," is of great age. Granted at the Conquest to William de Perci, it has passed through a multitude of hands, including the Fitz Warrens, Scropes, Whartons, and Molesworths, some of whose monuments are now to be seen in the church. The old manor-house stood near by, and Hunter saw it in 1802, though much had been pulled down in 1775.

THE CHURCH.—The plan of the Church comprises a western tower, nave with north aisle of two bays and south porch, chancel and north chapel of one bay. The original church consisted of oblong nave and chancel only, dating from the middle of the twelfth century. Almost all this structure remains, with a fine south doorway and window to east of it, and chancel arch. Notice also the original corbel tables to the eaves on both sides of the church. At the end of the twelfth century a north aisle was added to the nave, and a tower at the west end of the nave; the corbelled shafts supporting the east tower arch recall the influence of Roche. The north chapel is an addition of the second quarter of the fourteenth century, when some of the chancel windows were also inserted. The south porch was probably added late in the fourteenth century. In the fifteenth century the belfry stage and angle buttresses were added to the tower, and the nave walls were raised and finished with a battlemented parapet. The nave pews and pulpit retain some woodwork of the fifteenth century. The font bears the date 1590. There are two brasses in the north chapel—Philip Wharton, 1684-5, and Lady Mary, wife of Sir Thomas Wharton, 1672.

CONISBOROUGH.

Conisborough, or as the old and better spelling gives it, Coningsburgh, is the city or fortress of the king, and was therefore a royal residence in Saxon times. Its present remains, no less than the extent and history of its honour, are worthy of its name and origin. The legend connecting it with Hengist may be put aside, but it was probably held by Ethelred, and certainly by Harold, and at the Conquest was given to the Conqueror's son-in-law, the Earl of Warren. The family of Warren came to an end in 1347, and the honour passed to a son of Edward III, and became a private fief of the Crown till granted away by Elizabeth. The Castle has, ever since the fourteenth century, been in gradual decay, and thanks to this it escaped dismantling at the time of the Civil War. Leland scarcely mentions it. After various vicissitudes it has come into the hands of its present owner, Lord Yarborough.

Conisborough Castle is famous as the place pictured by Sir Walter Scott, as the palace of Athelstane, and scene of the funeral feast described in chapters xli, xlii of Ivanhoe. The circumstances of his visit to it, and "its romantic effect in the early dawn," are given in vol. iii of Lockhart's Life of Sir Walter Scott.

THE CHURCH.—Of the church mentioned in Domesday there appear to be no remains. A large aisleless church seems to have been erected in the middle of the twelfth century, of which the chancel-arch remains. The aisles extend to the west face of the tower, and were added towards the end of the twelfth century, the north aisle being a little earlier than the south. A squint from the north aisle points to a position in the chancel, where probably the original chancel ended. The south door is an excellent work of the end of the twelfth century, and the doorway of the south porch belongs to the early part of the thirteenth century. In the fourteenth me windows were inserted, and in the fifteenth century the as rebuilt and the greater part of the western tower was d. The font, of the middle of the fourteenth century, has itation of the Resurrection on its east face and a Majesty st face. There are several sepulchral memorials of interest, notable of which is a fine Norman tomb-cover, length 5 feet width at head I foot 10 inches, at feet I foot 5 inches, wered with sculpture, Early Norman, cf. work in Durham and on Bible of William of St. Carileph; on the top enclosing signs of zodiac (?); on the side bishop, R.H. n, L.H. pastoral staff; a knight, R.H. sword, L.H. water shaped See Associated Societies' Reports and Papers, 1867, vol. ix, 10, 71 (Raine). Romilly Allen, Christian Symbolism in Great nd Ireland, 1887, p. 270, gives drawing of above under the St. George and the Dragon. In a window in the vestry fragments of excellent fifteenth century glass.

CASTLE.—The castle occupies a fine site overlooking the is approached across an outer ward on the west side, which ed from the inner ward by a deep ditch which surrounds From the outer ward the ditch is crossed by a causeway places the drawbridge, and from this we pass through the places the drawbridge, and from this we pass through the f the gatehouse and along an oblique passage-way to the to the inner ward. The inner ward is an irregular figure, the natural outline of the ground. The older parts of the obably date from the first half of the twelfth century, and stic buildings of the castle were built along the inside of in, on the north, west, and south sides. The keep is he finest cylindrical keep remaining in England. It stands north-east angle of the curtain, which it interrupts. It is a of 52 feet external diameter above the spreading plinth, qually by six massive buttresses, tapering on plan. onsists of a basement and four stages. The basement is nd approached only from the floor above, by an opening in below which is the well. The keep was entered on the by an external stair, and light drawbridge; the first floor ndow or opening except the entrance doorway, and, like the was probably a store. The second floor is lighted by a vindow, and has a fine tireplace. The third floor is similarly nd has a smaller fireplace. The south-eastern buttress charming little oratory, of two bays, covered with a ribbed a small vestry to the north of it. The fourth floor, in the roof, was surrounded by an open rampart walk. The buttresses rose above the parapets, and in two of them steps remain which gave access to small platforms on the top; in another is an oven. The staircases and garderobes are contrived in the thickness of the wall, which is about 15 feet above the tapering base. The keep is doubtless the work of Hameline Plantagenet, half-brother of Henry II, who married Isabel de Warren in 1163, and died in 1202. The castle is well described and illustrated in G. T. Clark's Mediaval Military Architecture.

SPROTBOROUGH.

Sprotborough Manor, derived more obviously than probably from a Saxon "Sprot," can be traced to the Confessor's reign. It was granted at the Conquest to Roger de Busli, and descended direct in "a beautiful line of hereditary lords" (Hunter) for over eight hundred years to its last owner, Sir Joseph Copley, with whose death the direct line died out. For four hundred years of this period it was held by the great Fitzwilliam family, and the church monuments are principally in the names of Fitzwilliam and Copley.

THE CHURCH.—The plan of the church comprises a western tower, nave with north and south aisles of three bays, north and south porches, chancel, and two-storey sacristy on the north side. The earliest parts of the church are the responds of the north arcade of the nave, which represents an aisle added in the second half of the twelfth century to probably an aisleless nave. The chancel was rebuilt c. 1300. The nave arcades were reconstructed in the first half of the fourteenth century, when the aisles were no doubt widened. The tower was rebuilt in the fifteenth century. The church contains many interesting monuments. In the south aisle are the effigies of a knight and a lady, the latter under an arch in the south wall—possibly Sir William Fitzwilliam, who died before 1342, and his widow, Isabel, who in her will dated 1348 leaves her body to be buried in the chapel of St. Thomas the Martyr in the Church of Sprotborough (Hunter's South Yorkshire, i, 337). On the chancel floor is a brass with effigies of William Fitzwilliam (d. 1474), and his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Thomas Chaworth. In the chancel is the tomb of Philip Copley (d. 1577), son of Sir William Copley and Dorothy Fitzwilliam, and his wife, Mary (d. 1597), daughter of Sir Brian Hastings. There is a remarkable stone chair (fourteenth century) in the south aisle. The nave pews contain much early sixteenth century woodwork.

RIEVAULX ABBEY AND HELMSLEY CASTLE.

JUNE 23RD, 1900.

(No. 29.) In the second excursion of 1900 members visited lievaulx Abbey and Helmsley Castle, under the guidance of Mr. W. H. Witherby and Mr. S. D. Kitson. The following short notes uppeared in the programme:—

the first Cistercian house in Yorkshire, was founded in 1131 by Walter Espec. It was colonised direct from Clairvaux. Owing to the nature of the site it lies almost north and south, but the points of the compass are here treated conventionally.

The first buildings in stone were raised soon after 1145. The plan no doubt resembled that of Kirkstall, an aisleless presbytery of two bays, flanked by three chapels on each side, opening out of the transepts. The only existing remains are the ends and west sides of the latter and part of the south wall of the nave. The architecture was of the plainest possible type. The nave probably remained Norman to the end. There was a west window of many lights probably Perpendicular). At the west end was a Galilee, as at Fountains . About 1193-1203 a further storey was added to the transepts. The east chapels of the north transepts were then built. The present choir was next built (circa 1230), starting from the east, and the building proceeding westward to the Norman presbytery, which was then taken down and the new work joined on. The east chapels of the south transept were completed last. The above gives the order in the work of construction which has been accepted, but the last word has yet to be said.

The choir and presbytery each filled two bays and a half; the bay behind the high altar was open for processions, and against the east wall was a row of five small chapels.

The monastic buildings sadly need clearing. The frater is of great size, and built out over a vaulted under-croft. West of it was, as usual, the kitchen, and east the warming-house. The chapter-house had five aisles and an apse. Over it, as usual, was the monks' dorter, and the stair in the gable leading from it to the church is still raceable. The site of the gatehouse may still be seen, and the ruins of the capella extra portas.

The stone used in the buildings is of two kinds, and came from separate quarries. It was brought to the Abbey by "guteriae" or canals, filled from the Rye, some remains of which are still visible. Interesting evidence with regard to these may be gained from the Chartulary of Riccaulx Surtees Society, vol. lxxxiii).

At the Dissolution, in 1539, the site and buildings passed to Thomas, Earl of Rutland. From a survey then made, and now preserved at Belvoir, much valuable information has been gained.

stands near the river upon a large mound, strengthened with earth-works of uncertain date. There is a double moat. The keep was originally built about 1200 by Robert de Ros, who held the lordship from 1184 to 1226. The existing portion is 96 feet high, and contains three storeys. During the Civil War it was held for the King, besieged by Fairfax, and surrendered on honourable terms. It was then blown up by order of Parliament.

The main entrance is by a gatehouse flanked by circular towers, and is mainly Late Norman or Early English; but the portcullisgroove, with all before it, is of the 14th century.

The range of buildings west of the inner court is mainly Elizabethan, and was probably built by Edward, third Earl of Rutland (eb. 1587).

It was the favourite residence of the second Duke of Buckingham, whose trustees sold it to Sir Chas. Duncombe, ancestor of the present Lord Feversham.

COWTHORPE, MARSTON MOOR, BILTON, WIGHILL, AND WALTON.

JULY 28TH, 1900.

(No. 30.) On July 28, 1900, the third excursion of the year was conducted to Cowthorpe Oak and Church, Marston Moor, Bilton Church, and Walton Church, by Mr. W. Braithwaite. The party detrained at Wetherby, and after tea at the Royal Hotel, Boston Spa, returned by train from that place. Descriptions were given by Mr. Witherby and Mr. E. Kitson Clark.

COWTHORPE OAK.

The celebrated Oak has been described by Empson in 1842. Let no earlier history is recorded by him than the report that a ranch, 90 feet long, fell in 1722. In 1829 the oak's girth at the round level was 60 feet, at 3 feet from the ground 45 feet. The se of the tree has been estimated at 1,600 years.

There appears in the Leeds Mercury of January 13, 1816, the ellowing advertisement:—"Cowthorpe oak, 22yds. round the bottom, be sold by auction or by ticket at the house of Mr. Fletcher, inkeeper, in Shipbridge Lane, near York, on Friday, the 26th day of anuary, 1816."

COWTHORPE CHURCH (St. Michael and All Angels').

Cowthorpe. Domesday Book—Coletorp. "Three carucates to be zed, where there may be three ploughs. Godefoid de Alselin has of Wm. Percy..... There is a church there.... Manor.... Yalue T. R. E. 205., now 535. 4d."

The site of the church mentioned in Domesday is ascribed to a leid now known as Chapel Field, but no trace of the building temains. The present church was built probably as it stands now in 1455-8, at the cost of Sir Bryan Roucliffe. "Because the parish thurch was far from the village, and the road very wet, muddy, and hoxious," a commission was issued to certain men (among them the vicar of Bilton, John Hovingham) to enquire into the case. A new church was sanctioned February 13th, 1455-6, and forty days' indulgence granted to all who assisted in the work. The church was consecrated August 17th, 1458. The church is aisleless, having a chancel alightly narrower than the nave, walls about three feet thick. This simple plan is to be found at all periods in England for a small village church. The tower at the west end is remarkable, its eastern face is corbelled inside the church, and the rest of it carried by a pointed arch and vaulting outside the west wall.

The masonry suggests that the tower and church are of the same date, and this appears to be confirmed by the fragments of a most interesting brass, in which the donor is represented with the church in his hand. This brass has suffered at the hands of thieves of the present half-century. According to Waller in the Yorkshire Archaeological Journal, lvii, p. 10, it was dated 1494, and at his date (1845) it was laid as a base for a large stove. There remain the effigy of Sir Brian Rouclyff, the church, the bier, a shield with Rouclyff and Ughtred, and two pieces of the finial of the canopy. On the church, above the nave door, is a chess "rook," the badge of Roucly Sir Bryan's father was Recorder of York. He gained this estate through his mother, and was raised to the bench as third Baron of the Exchequer in 1458, and died 1494. His will (Surtees Society, liii, p. 102) is full of interest. He left money for the poor of Colthorp, to the rector of Colthorp his cloak and cape, to Blind Carlill de Colthorp 2d. per week, etc.

There are shields in the windows which can be connected with his family, a font with shields, and a fine chest. The chalice is Elizabethan, and the Registers begin in 1568. The earliest bell is dated 1622.

The old Manor House of Cowthorpe is the first house on the right as one comes from Wetherby.

BATTLE OF MARSTON MOOR (fought on July 2nd, 1644).

When maps had been distributed to members, a full description was given embodying the following particulars:—

The Parliamentarian forces and their Scottish allies were besieging York. Prince Rupert was advancing from Lancashire by way of Skipton, Denton, and Knaresborough to its relief. Fearing to be caught between the Prince and the Duke of Newcastle, who was in command at York, the Parliamentarians raised the siege, and occupied the rising ground above Long Marston, hoping to bar the advance of the relieving force. Rupert, however, by a wide flanking movement, crossed the Ure at Boroughbridge, the Swale at Thornton Bridge, and seizing the enemy's bridge of boats over the Ouse, joined forces with Newcastle. Meanwhile, the Parliamentarians, alarmed for the safety of the Midlands, had begun to retire southwards, when news was brought of Rupert's advance for battle. They quickly reoccupied their position, while the Royalists were placed along a ditch, which may still be traced, running north of and parallel to the road from Tockwith to Long Marston. In numbers the Parliamentarians had a considerable advantage, though the actual figures vary. After some hours of mutual inaction, at about seven p.m. the Parliamentarians made a sudden charge; and in spite of a temporary check, Cromwell; and Leslie routed Rupert, who commanded the right wing, and drove him "along Wilstrop Woodside." The Royalist right under Goring was completely successful but carried pursuit and plunder too far. The battle was really won by the steadiness of Cromwell, who kept s men in hand, and routed Goring's Cavaliers on their return. In the centre, Newcastle's "Whitecoats" retired fighting hard to an inclosure called White Syke Close, and died there almost to a man. the History of the Great Civil War, by S. R. Gardiner; Battles Fought in Yorkshire, by A. D. H. Leadman; Markham's Life of Fairfax, &c.

BILTON CHURCH.

Domesday Book-Biletone. No church mentioned. bowever, a pre-Norman cross of great interest, which should be photographed—two figures on shaft, one with club, the other with object resembling a dumb-bell. The head of the cross has four equal arms tied by a circle, and figures in each arm, their heads to the centre; decoration, the interlaced pattern usually ascribed to Celtic influence. The church, eleventh century nave (length twice its breadth), north and south aisles pierced by Norman arcade, which was restored by Sir G. Scott. There are zigzag mouldings on either side of round chancel arch, and unusual ornaments on the capitals of the Norman reades. The bases of the pillars show distinctly late mouldings. he Norman corbels of the original chancel roof appear in the north d south aisles. The picturesque nave roof is covered with stone es, and timbered inside with unusual strengthening pieces. There a monument in the south aisle ascribed to a prioress of Synningwaite; dress, fourteenth century; font, Early Norman.

The Registers begin in 1571. Capt. J. Carmichael and Capt.

Ashton were buried there in 1644, the date of Marston Moor.

November 1, 1666, there was paid to my Lord Major of Yorke the some of fower pounds fifteen shillings, collected in the parish Bilton, concerning the great fire of London."

WIGHILL CHURCH.

In Domesday Book—two Wicheles are mentioned; no church.

Thill was first owned by Bertram Haget, who founded Helaugh

Tory, and probably built the first church at Wighill in the twelfth tury. The manor passed through several hands, and was sold to Brian de Stapilton in 1375. In the church there are numerous ments commemorating this family, who held the manor for 450

The most remarkable is a full length figure of Robert Stapilton, who died March 11th, 1635,—a graceful marble figure in cuirass and gorget, with short peaked beard, moustaches pointing upwards, according to the fashion set by the King. A touching inscription is added by his widow, who subsequently married Sir M. Boynton, a widower with eleven children, and after his death, a third and fourth husband.

The church has no chancel arch, has not had the plaster removed, has a north aisle (probably end of twelfth century), with Lady Chapel at its east end, a very small priest's door, low side window, and a devil's door, and benches (? fourteenth century) of bleached oak, with simple poppy heads at the ends. There are excellent gargoyles on the tower, representing musicians and jesters; but the chief attraction of Wighill Church is its very perfect Norman west door, which requires photographing, and would repay careful study. There is a fine view from the east end over the plain of York. The Vicar has posted up a list, complete as far as evidence can be obtained, of his predecessors. It would be a most excellent thing if this were made a general practice in all churches.

Before reaching Walton Church an Early manor house is passed (windows walled up in the days of the window tax). In the field which surrounds it are mounds, which mark a still earlier enclosure which merits attention, and a building standing by itself, reported to be the Assize Court.

WALTON CHURCH.

Domesday—Waletone. No church mentioned. The land of Osbern-de-Arches, i.e. from Arques, near Dieppe; perhaps Thorp Arch recalls the name of the Norman owner of Walton.

The plan consists of an aisleless nave, western tower, south porch, and chancel. The plain Norman tower arch, with chamfered imposts, is the earliest work in the church, but the present nave may possibly represent the lines of the original Norman nave. The tower has a remarkably big plinth on its western side, perhaps designed to ensure a firm foundation on the sloping ground. The chancel was reconstructed in the second quarter of the fourteenth century; the east window of five lights and a window of three lights on the south side are of this period, and both are filled with reticulated tracery. The nave is lighted by two tall square-headed windows on each side, which are apparently a little later than the chancel windows. On the north side of the chancel is an arched recess, foiled, and with a crochetted ogee hood mould springing from slender pinnacle shafts: in this recess is a stone effigy of a knight in armour of the latter part of the fourteenth ary; he wears a pointed bassinet, with camail, short tight surcoat, its lower edge cut into leaf forms, below which appears a fringe nail; the defences of the arms and legs are entirely of plate, with shaped coudes articulated above and below, and similar knee-caps; knight wears gauntlets, and a horizontal belt decorated with roses, a dagger on the right and sword (broken) on the left; his feet on a lion, and his head on a tilting helmet, the crest of which has in broken off. At the west end of the nave is a polygonal font ha very shallow recess for the water, which might be ascribed to beginning of the thirteenth century.

An inscription to Nicolas Fairfax (170%) recalls the fact that the ler branch of this great Yorkshire family had its seat at Walton, d it is possible to connect the unknown knight, whose effigy is scribed above, with Thomas Fairfax, whose will was signed at Walton 94, and is more than usually interesting. The earliest forms of mames appear therein. He leaves bequests to Edmund Coke, ugh Gardiner, Symon Dyker, John Coke, Agnes Nuresse, Adam arter, John Swynhird, etc.; and further on a connection between the puclyff family is found in the one piece of silver, signed with "rokes."

At the conclusion of the Society's visit to the Museum at Adel June 22nd, 1899, a collection was made among the members on a spot, and the sum realised was offered to the Rector for the rpose of providing a better light to the building, and also for thing shelves on which to place the smaller objects for their being tter exhibited. This has now been done, and a balance of about is still left, which might be used for printing a small catalogue the objects if one were drawn up.

Some Civil War Accounts, 1647–1650.

Thoresby's collection, and is now in the possession of the Thoresby Society, and the Council have decided to print it in full as a record of genuine historical interest, although it cannot be ascribed particularly to the locality. Further than this, it is difficult to assign the correct value to the apparently unconnected items of expenditure until such time as other accounts of a like character (and there are many) have been printed and annotated.

So far for the demerits of the document, but the demerits of the system therein disclosed entitle it to interest and consideration. Army reform is a burning question in 1901, and it was seriously taken up when in February, 1645, the New Model was brought into being, and this country came to possess a regular army. Many chapters have been lost from the history of this all-important subject, and many paragraphs are needed to fill up the gaps, paragraphs such as the following, which may readily provide from out of their unclassified, irreconcileable elements the materials of an attractive and instructive story.

When it is remembered that one of the greatest sources of trouble among the victorious Parliamentary forces, early in the war, that been the irregularity of payment, it seems extraordinary that so that as 1647 the expenditure should be still dealt with in the haphazard fashion here set forth.

It is true that there is an audit, that each page is signed by the Quartermaster general of foot," E. Grosvenor, and that at the end of the accounts of each year there appears the signature of Mr. John Rushworth, Secretary to the Council of War and to His Excellency, if Thomas Fairfax, the Lord General. But a cursory inspection ill lead the reader to wonder what the system could be, when such improportionate items as £1,617 2s. 6d. "to Col. Butler and Col. where for disbanding their troopes," and £1 10s. $3\frac{1}{2}d$. "to Wm refer for coales and candles at the Mewes," appear close together. Lat were the regular arrangements for payment of the army in general, what was the scale adopted for the various services, and what the authorization for the several classes of expenditure, are questions which at once present themselves. The direct answers are not to be found in these Accounts, but they may upon fuller consideration and by careful collation, furnish indications of what is desired.

The period covered is from January, 1647, to July, 1650, from the close of the first Civil War to the resignation by Fairfax of his post as Lord General. The last entry is on June 26th, 1650, the day on which Cromwell succeeded Fairfax in the chief command. The composition of the army at this time is admirably given by the Hon. J. W. Fortescue in his History of the British Army, Vol. I, p. 220, while further details as to pay and equipment are to be found in Grose's Military Antiquities. The notes in the text illustrate and explain much that is of interest. Some of the most interesting references to important historical incidents are to be found on page 141, where there is a payment of £100 "to Cornett Joyce for extra charges," on July 10th, 1647, just after his removal of the King from Holmby House; on page 143, where there is an entry, August 24th, 1647, of £40 "for the seamen who overtooke the 6 members neere Calice;" and on page 169, where £200 was paid on May 3rd, 1648, "for Contingencies for Lt Generall Cromwell at his goeing into Wales." It is indeed a veritable "Account of Contingencies" Here are recorded all manner of payments, 2s. 6d. for a lost husband; 5s. "to a man that lost his hogge;" 10s. for "a female scout taken at Sherborne;" "£798 9s. 4d. for a moneths pay for the Companies in the Tower;" and there is not even a standard in the value of husbands, hogs or garrisons. The conscientious reader will be still more disturbed by erasures and additions that the final signatory has made apparently at the time of his audit.

It is interesting to note the numerous entries of compensation for damages caused by the army, and the still more numerous payments to maimed soldiers—"it is supposed that many salve up the ruins of their estates out of their wounds," wrote Dr. Wilson, in the Fairfax Correspondence, June, 1643.

The accounts are written on paper, and are in the main fairly legible: where the rendering is doubtful a query is inserted. Letter missed by abbreviation in the original have been added in italics and words struck out have been printed in brackets.

¹ January, 1647, according to the new style, adopted in England in 1752: stherto the year had begun on March 25th.

² A Waggon-master's ordinary pay was in 1639, 6s. 8d. a day. Grose, I, p. 278.

³ Engineer-general. The English were behindhand in the use of Field Artillery. Fortescue (History of the British Army, I, p. 219) points out the significance of the fact that the officers in the Engineers have foreign names.

^{}Robert Lilburne, colonel of a foot regiment in the New Model. One of the leaders in the opposition of the army to the Parliament, on the attempt of the House of Commons to disband the army in March, 1647, he promoted the petition of the officers about the terms of service in Ireland, and indemnity for past particle. Lilburne did his best to prevent his regiment from volunteering for Ireland, and was summoned before the House of Commons to answer for his conduct. Fairfax, in 1647, made him Governor of Newcastle.

⁵ Bristol was invested by Fairfax on Aug. 23rd, 1645, and surrendered on Sept. 11th, 1645.

The £10 is, unlike all the other sums on the page, not ticked, and the sum total on the first page is £10 more than the sum put down on the outside page of he accounts.

¹The £100 paid to Cornet Joyce for extra charges was possibly connected the his mission to Holmby House, Oxfordshire, and his removal of the King ence on June 4th, 1647. Joyce went to Holmby House at the head of a large dy of horse (about 500), under Cromwell's command, but it is doubtful whether orders were only "to secure the King, or also to carry him off if necessary." urfax was displeased at the seizure of the King and demanded who gave the lers. Gardiner, III, p. 86. If this payment has any connection with the mission, a strange that it should have been made through Fairfax's Quartermaster-general.

¹Six of the famous eleven members accused by the army on June 16th, 1647, of trying to overthrow the liberties of the subjects, etc. The Commons refused to suspend them, but they withdrew, June 26th. On Aug. 14th the Agitators demanded their expulsion from the House, and two days later six of them fled the country, five of whom were overtaken by a frigate near Calais. Gardiner, III, p. 181. Rushworth (Collections, VIII, p. 785), writing on Aug. 21st, 1647, gives the following account of the episode:—"This day we had certain intelligence of the apprehending Six of the Eleven Members, as they were going beyond Sea, being taken within Six Miles of Callis." They set sail at "Margarets' in Kent, the Pursuers inquired "of the Fishermen what their Carriage was, they replied, the Gentlemen that went aboard were in very great haste. One Fisherman saying to them, I do not think but these are some Parliament-men flying. Whereupon one Captain Bennet drew his Sword at him, but the Fisherman being nin-ble of his Heels escaped. The Town understanding by the Messenger what they were, very readily, at the beat of a drum, repaired to their Colours, and Forty of them, under the Command of Captain Lamming, a Valiant Seaman, put to Sea in a Small Vessel, and within Six Miles of Callis overtook them, who seeing themselves pursued, made hard to Windward to escape, but could not." They were brought before Vice-Admiral Batten at Deal, and by him set at liberty. Rushworth continues that "the Seamen who apprehended them" were "found threatned and sufficiently reviled against by Parson Major Kem."

Agitators or Agents was the name given to representatives of the appointed first in April, 1647, by eight cavalry regiments, to secure the red their grievances, and prevent the disbanding of the army by Parliament. curious to notice that whenever the word "Agitator" occurs in the text, been crossed out, and often some other word substituted. Earlier in the ye this might have been explained by the fact that both Cromwell and hesitated between their sympathy with the grievances of the soldiers an reverence for Parliamentary authority. But their objection to military re to Parliament disappeared when in June, 1647, they found that the Comeant to use force to obtain their ends. Gardiner, III, p. 59, seq.

¹The Pioneers marched before or with the army with spades, etc., to clear the ^ay or dig entrenchments. Fortescue (History of the British Army, I, p. 219) says ^cy were in the seventeenth century the scum of the army, and degradation to be ¹ abject pioneer was the regular punishment for hardened offenders.

^aIn the early part of the Civil War, Massey played an important part in the mpaign in the West. In Oct., 1646, his troops were disbanded by order of the ouse. He was a staunch Presbyterian and one of the leaders of the city against earny. In June, 1647, he was impeached for designing to raise a new civil u, and fled to Holland. In 1649 he took service under the king.

³ Given the command of the army of the Eastern Association by Parliament in 43. He did useful service early in the war, but soon became fatally lethargic d half-hearted in its prosecution. Cromwell accused him before the House of glect and incompetence, and in April, 1645, the day before the passing of the iff Denying Ordinance (forbidding members of either House to serve in the my), he resigned his commission.

1 Lieut. Col. of a foot regiment in the New Model. A champion of the right of the soldiers to petition for the redress of their grievances. In Dec., 1648, Pryde, under Fairfax's orders, arrested over forty members of the House and forcibly prevented the entry of ninety others, to frustrate the intended agreement with the King. This episode became known as "Pryde's Purge."

King. This episode became known as "Pryde's Purge."

² The Clubmen were an organized body of the countrymen of Wiltshire, Dorsetshire and Sometsetshire, whose object was the protection of life and property. The movement was set on foot early in 1645, and the name was derived from the appearance of the countrymen without pikes or firearms at the countrymen. The Clubmen, though at first only desirous of peace and security, were soon won over to the Royalist cause, "not sparing to declare themselves absolute neuters (or rather friends to the enemy)" says Sprigg. They were easily dispersed by the Parliamentary forces. "Many of them," wrote Cromwell to Fairfax, "are poor silly Parliamentary forces. "Many of them," wrote Cromwell to Fairfax, "are poor silly for time to come, and will be hanged before they come out again." Fairfax Correspondence, I, p. 245. Gariliner, II, c. xxxii.

³ Ensign Nicholls was imprisoned by the Parliamentary Commission.

Correspondence, I. p. 245. Garainer, II. C. XXXII.

3 Ensign Nicholls was imprisoned by the Parliamentary Commissioners sent in April, 1047, to Saffron Walden, to persuade the soldiers to volunteer for Ireland. On April 21st, Nicholls was caught circulating the soldiers' petition for indemnity, On April 21st, Nicholls was caught circulating the soldiers' petition for indemnity, on April 27th before the Commons, who committed him to prison.

¹ Colonel of a foot regiment in the New Model. Hammond upheld the claims of the army against the House in the strife of the spring of 1647, but seems to have soon doubted the right of the army to withstand Parliament by force, and resigned his commission. In Sept., 1647, Fairfax made him Governor of the Isle of Wight. In Nov., 1647, Charles fled from Hampton Court, and threw himself on the protection of Hammond, as one who had fought against him "without any animosity to his person." Charles found the distracted Hammond not a protector but a gaoler, and while in Nov., 1647, he wrote "I am daily more and more satisfied with this governor," in the summer of 1648 he changed to "the devil cannot outgo him neither in malice nor cunning." In Nov., 1648, Fairfax sent for Hammond, and in his absence Charles was seized and taken to Hurst Castle.

¹ The Earl of Warwick took a prominent part in the colonization of Americ, and in 1643 was made governor of all the islands and plantations subject to the Crown. He was a leader of the opposition to Charles I, and a friend of the Puritans. In 1642 he was made admiral of the fleet, but his command ended with the Self Denying Ordinance. On the revolt of part of the fleet in 1648, Warwick was made lord high admiral.

² On July 30th, 1647, some of Fairfax's regiments seized on Tilbury Fort, on their advance to London to protect the true Parliament expelled by the violence of the mob.

¹ A mutiny broke out in the fleet on May 27th, 1648, and Dover Castle was sieged. It was relieved by the Parliamentary troops on June 6th.

² There had been for some time no good understanding between the army and fleet, and in the end of May, 1648, emboldened by the successful Royalist ing in Kent, six ships in the Downs declared for the King. The mutiny, wever, only spread to three more ships, and though at first the rising appeared midable. Fairfax successfully routed the Kentish army. The nine revolted ships int to Holland, and invited the Duke of York to come on board as their miral. Gardiner, III, lxii and lxiv.

³ After successfully reducing Kent, Fairfax turned to Essex, and arrived before sichester on June 12th, 1648; the town surrendered after a stubborn defence on 1g. 28th.

ACCOUNTS OF THE WORKS BEFORE COLCHESTER, June 18, 1648, to Aug. 27, 1648.

These accounts, unlike the others, are for a definite object, and though in the majority of cases a name is the only entry, presumably the payment is for digging or other work in the entrenchments. The total sum paid is about £1,695, and that would be only a very small part of the cost of the siege.

The siege of Colchester was one of the most severe of the whole war, and lasted from June 14th to Aug. 28th, 1648. It was a development of the formidable Royalist rising in Kent and Essex in the spring of 1648. The Royalists on their way into Norfolk and Suffolk turned aside into Colchester, hoping to get recruits there. They had not counted on Fairfax's rapid pursuit from his headquarters in London, and when on June 12th he appeared with 5,000 men they were obliged to make hasty preparations for defence. The town was ill-fitted to stand a siege, and the 4,000 Royalist troops were most of them newly levied and ill-armed, but after a repulse on June 14th, Fairfax realized that a long siege was inevitable, and busied himself with raising forts to completely isolate the town. On July 2nd the work of circumvallation was finished, and though meeting with fierce resistance, Fairfax gained post after post. Early in August famine added to the misery of the besieged, and never more than half-hearted in their reception of the Royalists, the citizens began to clamour for surrender.

On Aug. 19th, Norwich, the Royalist leader, asked for terms; negotiations went on for some days, and finally on Aug. 28th, Fairfax occupied the town. Three of the Royalist leaders were shot, and the soldiers were sent to labour in the West Indies, or to enforced military service under the Venetian Republic. The townsmen were made to pay a heavy fine. For an account, and a very interesting map of the siege of Colchester, see Gardiner, III, 400.

Churchwardens' Accounts.—Methley.

By E. KITSON CLARK.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Methley parish churchwardens' accounts, of which unfortunate but little survive, are the first records of the kind which thoresby Society has undertaken, and it seems natural not only annotate them as far as possible, but to preface them with a general introduction to the subject. So much have churchwardens suffer from the careless appreciation of their unremunerated work, that more people are content to accept their existence as a matter of course, remember their failings, and to take note of their philistine actions, and so to forget the value of that lay executive which has carried out such important duties for many centuries.

Any analysis, however slight, of the items of such accounts presents to the enquirer at the outset many and complicated problems. He feels warned at once that the task of dealing with ! the origin, growth, and work of the warden's office is one which should claim the full attention of a devoted historian, and that it is too ambitious for an isolated article in a miscellaneous publication of a local archæological society. At the same time there are to be found in reprints of constitutional documents, etc., allusions to the duties of churchwardens sufficient to provide an intelligible commentary upon the questions which arise in connection with the accounts here printed. Some such passages have been extracted for this purpose, and it is hoped that they may suggest explanations or provide illustrations in connection with this important subject. But in the extracts to be quoted below there appears no solution to the first problem which naturally suggests itself, namely: When and how did the office of churchwarden originate? And when we turn to the History of English Law, by Pollock & Maitland, we find no more definite statement than opinions begun with such careful words as, "We are not persuaded," and "We suspect."

COLLECTION BY WILLIAM LAMBARD.

The position of churchwarden in common law is set forth by William Lambard, who writes clearly, and gives full references to the Acts of Parliament, from which authority is derived. These references, as far as verification has been possible, give evidence that the author is most satisfactorily reliable.

In 1606 William Lambard, of Lincoln's Inn, gent., wrote a treatise upon the duties of the "lowe and lay Ministers of the Peace," and adioyned thereunto "the seuerall offices of Church Ministers and Churchwardens, and ouerseers for the poore, surueighors of the highwaies, and distributors of the prouision against noysome fowles and vermine." The duties of the last three offices seem to have been intimately associated with the functions of churchwardens, if not actually performed by them, and as the overlapping can be seen in the several Methley accounts, a short abstract of Lambard's remarks on all these heads is annexed. He prefaces his treatise by saying that "in passing thorow some statuts concerning the offices of Constable and Borsholder, he found them mingled with" the others abovementioned; and he "was mooued to adde somewhat of these offices the rather that" he "was perswaded that with the little more of labour" he "might doe a great deale more of good, seeing that thereby the plaine countryman should (after a sort) be furnished with all manner of understanding (in the temporall law) needeful for the exercise of any of these offices that may lightly fall upon him." And he proceeds, with constant references to statutes, to give a most thorough and pleasantly written description of the duties of these offices:-

"The churchwardens of a parish be taken (in fauour of the church) to bee for some purposes a maner of Corporation at the common Law; that is to say persons enabled to take moueable goods or cattels, and to sue or be sued.

Law to recouer a Legacie, or such other thing which they neuer had: yet if any such goods of the Church be once in their custodie, they can maintaine an Appeale of robberie against him that stealeth them."

And among such goods are mentioned "means for reparation of the church, bookes, communion cuppes, linnen cloathes, bells, and pews.

Nor can they giue away, or release at their owne pleasure, the goods of the church," in which case the parishioners would have right at all times to proceed to an election of new churchwardens, who could call their predecessors to account.

"Churchwardens have not to doe with lands, for the parson is be deal with these, as he is with the wals, windows, or dores that be broken, or the trees in the churchyard that be cut downe, or great thereof eaten up.

"The churchwardens are to see to the attendance of all persons at church, and to present the monthly absence of Recusants; On the Tuesday or Wednesday in Easter weeke they shall hold an election of surveyors for the amendment of the Highwaies, they shall appoint in daies for this amendment before Midsummer then next following; and shall openly in the church the next Sunday after Easter give knowledge of the same sixe dayes; They shall leuy the penalties of innkeepers, for suffering any to remain tipling in their houses; They shall inflict the fines upon such as eat flesh on days usually observed as fish days, and apply the third part of such forfeitures to the use of the parish.

"The churchwardens, together with four, three, or two others appointed by the Justices of Peace, shall be Overseers of the poor, for the purpose of setting persons that have no means, to worke; and for the necessarie reliefe of the impotent poore and the putting out of their children to be apprentices, they may tax inhabitants and occupiers of lands in the parish.

"Their meetings are to take place once a month at the least, in the church, upon some Sunday, in the afternoone, and an account of their money, stock, and other things is to be yeelded up within four daies after theire year ends to the two Justices of Peace.

"They have power, upon warrant from two Justices, to leuie taxations by distress and sale of the offendour's goods; and may (by leaue of the Lord of a Common or Waste in writing) erect there conuenient habitations, and place inmates therein, at the generall charges of the parish. When the stock of the shire is assessed by the Justices of Peace in their Quarter Session, the churchwardens are responsible for the carrying out of the assessment. Further, they must pay ratably over to the High Constable, in whose limit the parish is scituate, ten daies before the end of every Quarter Sessions, such money as for the parish they ought to pay for the relief of the prisoners in the Marshalsey and King's Bench.

"The churchwardens, with six other parishioners, shall yearly, in one of the holy daies in Easter week, and at euery other time when it shal be needful, assesse euery person having any lands or tithes within the parish to p think fit. And out of the payment shall be made by the distributors of the prouision for vermine. The churchwardens fine for default in these matter

I churchwardens has been affected or their functions reduced in todern times. And the following have been taken from a list in the Leport to the Convocation of Canterbury, 1902, No. 367:—

By the Toleration Act there ceased to be any civil disqualification citizens on the ground of religious opinions, and so the ideas and actions involved by the Acts of Uniformity (1552, 1558, 1662) passed way.

By the Union of Parishes Act the parochial unit was disturbed, and this particular function of churchwardens interfered with. See to 1834.

By the Church Building Acts pew-rents are set up as a source income by which the Church may be served and the principle that very parishioner had a right to a seat in his parish church was disregarded.

The Unions of parishes were extended beyond the provisions of the Act of 1782, and now churchwardens are no longer ex-officion members of Boards of Guardians.

The Civil Registration of births and deaths superseded for legal purposes the Church Registers, and marriage by civil rite became recognised by law.

By the Burials Acts (1852, 1853, 1880, 1900) the use of the church burial office and the consecration of the burial ground became longer necessary.

Compulsory Church rates were abolished, and consequently the obligation of the parishioners to maintain public worship was no longer recognised by law.

We will not weary the reader who has survived by attempting a recapitulation, but prefer to apologise for an amount of undigested information, trusting humbly that in the preceding pages many facts have been borrowed which have been put side by side so as to partially elucidate the position of churchwardens in the development of the parish. For the wholesale borrowing we are indebted to the historians and scholars whose names appear in the many references above, and we would acknowledge with grateful thanks the very kind guidance of Professor E. C. Clark, Rev. W. H. Frere, and Professor Maitland, and would at the same time exempt them from responsibility of our own errors and want of system.

THE CHURCHWARDENS' ACCOUNTS OF METHLEY PARISH, 1681-1705.

Transcribed and Annotated by Rev. H. ARMSTRONG-HALL.

A NUMBER of leaves of a manuscript book were found in a lamp cupboard in the Vestry of Methley Church about four years ago. The leaves measured 20 in. by 8 in. About half the written matter relates to collections made in the Church and the distribution of the Easter and Christmas Doles during the latter part of the eighteenth century. The earlier leaves contain schedules of liabilities for the repair of the churchyard fence (some undated and one of 1768), lists of bonds and securities (from 1672 onwards) due to the poor, a copy of a General Quarter Sessions Order relative to the duties of Constables and to vagrants; the accounts of the Churchwardens, the Constables, the Overseers of the Poor, and the Overseers of the Highways for the period (roughly) 1680–1707; and a list of the Churchwardens, Overseers of the Poor, and Overseers of the Highways from 1639 onwards.

Of the accounts, those of the Overseers of the Poor are the most complete, but are of little interest, as they do not record much beyond the names of the persons who were in receipt of monthly relief. Occasionally the entries are varied with such as the following:—

lonstables' accounts range over the whole inner life of nip and its relation to the larger life of the county and the Thus we read of county bridge money, of the hue and e arrest of vagrants, of the relief of seamen and travellers, nd persons on the way to "the spawes," and persons ses" and "letters of request," of the Fourteen Articles, of he pinfolds and the field fences, the ducking stool and s, of "holburts" and "watch bills," of warrants for oney, of the building of "Yorke gaill" and the repair of beacon," of making a list of boatmen and "raisinge 3 of repairing Leeds bridge, of "returning a list of Papists Seshons" and drawing up a schedule of "Popish of raising the "Traine Band," and of relieving the t York Castle. The pages of the Constables' accounts narges which in many parishes appear in the Churchecounts. Indeed, the distinction between the work of the s of officials is in some matters very ill defined. It is refore, that in a future issue the Thoresby Society may e Constables' accounts of Methley, with further notes, and a more perfect picture of the Parish life of this village.1

Churchwardens' Accounts of Pittington (Surtees Society, lxxxiv) the ns, the trustees for the poor stock, the overseers for the poor, the the high ways, were different persons at this period. resting comparison may also be made by reference to Memorials of sh. Hill and Frere. 1890-1.

The list of Churchwardens and Overseers is of considerable interest. It is headed, "The names of all the Churchwarden Overseers of the Poore, and Overseers of the Highwayes in the yeare of our Lord 1639." In subsequent years the date only, and 1640, is given. The only break in the list is during the Civil War After the names of those elected for 1643 is written, "These was till 1648," and then follow the elections for the last-named year. The Constables are not mentioned as being elected, though obvious they had to submit their accounts for the criticism of the parish.

It may be noted here that the word Churchwarden does not occur in any Methley will till 1584, in which year Richard Webster, "peinter," gave "unto the makinge of a faire tabernacle and cour to be maid of faire timber to couer the foote or place of Baptising within the Parish Church of Methelay to be maid after the best manner at the order and ouer sighte and appointment of Mr. With Lacie Robte Laborne the younger and of the parson of Methelay the hole sum of iijs. iiijd. to be paid by myne executors unto the handes of the Church Wardens of the Parish Church of Metheley aforesaid."

In order to bring the Churchwardens' expenses into some soft of a system we have divided them out into several sections, the description of which appears at the head of the columns of the schedule which follows.

A glance at these columns will show how little expense was deemed necessary to maintain the fabric of the church, how very little was done towards cleansing and caretaking, what a large proportion of the total expenditure was absorbed by the bells and the clock, and that the most costly duty of the Churchwardens was to provide the bread and wine for the Communion.

It might be expected that other sections, such as charity work, highways, etc., would claim more of the finances of the village, but as suggested above, although the general introduction to these accounts, pages 236-71, state that the Churchwardens were charged with such work in this case, much of it in different places was undertaken by the Constables.

There are a few instances of payments for apprentices; but no mention of education or of sanitary regulations occur. No notice of village festivities or interesting local events is to be found; but ¹ Mending the "causey" was a favourite object of bequests in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries.

REPORT for 1901.

THE Council of the Thoresoy Society have the pleasure to present their Thirteenth Annual Report. During the year two ife and twenty-two Annual Members have joined the Society, and he number on the Roll at the close of the year was 336, of whom is were Life and 281 Annual.

During the year further parts of the "Miscellanea" and "Leeds Parish Church Registers" have been issued to members for the year 1900. The "Miscellanea" contained a valuable article by Mr. Baildon on the Leathley family; a plan of Leeds in 1806, with description; further portion of local Wills, 1531 to 1533; Justice's Note-Book of Captain John Pickering; and Lay Subsidies of Agbrigg and Morley Wapentakes.

During the summer enjoyable excursions were made to the Roman Road on Blackstone Edge Moor, to Nun Monkton and Kirkhammerton, and to Tickhill Church and Castle and Roche Abbey, under the able direction and guidance of Messrs. Barran, Bilson, Clark, and Witherby.

The Council gratefully acknowledge gifts from the family of the late Mr. John Killingbeck, of Kidderminster, of his collections relating to Hunslet; from Mrs. John Stansfeld, of a walking stick, inscribed "Jeremiah Thoresby 1690"; from Miss Dixon, of Harrogate, of two water-colour drawings of the Shambles of 1830 and of the nterior of Leeds Parish Church of that date; from Mr. Arthur Middleton, a picture of a Review of Volunteers, circa 1800; from Mr. J. R. Ford, a plan of Leeds, dated 1806; from Mr. S. Denison, an engraved portrait of John Smeaton and a framed trade list S. Hirst, Briggate; and from Mr. G. Bingley, two photographs of stone coffin found at Chapeltown.

The most important event in connection with the history of Society, which has happened during the past year, was the purch of the premises, No. 10, Park Street, Leeds. The Society was for in 1889, and amongst its objects the first is the "collection preservation of books, pamphlets, MSS., deeds, engravings, drawing coins, antiquities, and other objects relating to the town neighbourhood of Leeds."

It is obvious that this object cannot be carried out unless Society possesses a permanent home in the district. It is now years since, by arrangement with the Yorkshire Archæological Socia portion of the Old Medical School in Park Street was secured lease. Here the two Societies have ever since had a home. portion of the premises occupied by the Societies forms only a spart of the estate, but the terms of tenancy included an opto purchase the whole, which has just been exercised. The Societies are now joint owners in fee simple of the entire es extending to about 1,000 square yards of land, nearly all cov with buildings.

Due prominence should be given to this event, and the Condesire to call the attention of the members to the fact that premises have been acquired for the purpose of enabling the So to carry out the first of its objects, above referred to.

The Council acknowledge with gratitude the liberality of s of the members, from whom they have received interesting gifts. is believed that there is not a member of the Society who cannot some way help forward its objects; and the Council will be indeed to receive any article of interest; and they desire to tention to the fact that a valuable collection of objects of local terest includes many things which in themselves are of small trinsic value.

The purchase of the premises above referred to involves a duty which attention must now be called. The Society has not inficient invested funds for the payment of its share of the invested funds for the payment of its share of the involving an annual capital outlay. The Council appeal to the inventor to help them to discharge this liability. They have in their store room a stock of publications, and they appeal to members to complete their sets.

Several members have recently compounded for their future abscriptions. This is another way in which the unpaid purchase money may be provided. The Life Fee is at present only five unless, and the Council will be glad to increase the number of life Members.

As the demands upon the finances of the Society have been of an exceptional character during the past year, the Council beg that members will oblige them by prompt payment of their subscriptions.

REPORT FOR 1902.

HE Council of the Thoresby Society have the pleasure to present their Fourteenth Annual Report. During year ten Life Members, some of whom were already mual Members, and twenty new Annual Members have ned the Society, and the number on the Roll at the see of the year was 338, of whom 63 were Life and 275 annual Members.

During the year further parts of the Coucher Books of irkstall Abbey and Calverley Charters have been issued members for 1901.

During the summer enjoyable excursions were made to inaresborough Castle and Church; to Giggleswick Church, Iuseum and School Chapel, and the Victoria Cave; to illing Castle, Byland Abbey, and Coxwold; and to severley Minster and St. Mary's Church, under the able irection and guidance of Messrs. J. N. Barran, J. Bilson, E. Kitson Clark, S. D. Kitson, and W. H. Witherby.

During the year Mr. Hargrove resigned his position as in ordinary Member of Council, and was elected a Vice-President; Mr. Scattergood was chosen to fill his place.

The Council have also to announce with great regret he retirement of Mr. W. H. Witherby from his position as one of the Honorary Secretaries, in consequence of his leaving Leeds. Mr. Witherby's services to the Society have been invaluable, especially in connection with the excursions. Mr. Scattergood was elected by the Council to fit the vacancy.

There is thus one vacant place on the Council, for which Mr. Frank Gott has been nominated.

The Council have to acknowledge with gratitude the following amongst other gifts to the Society:—From Mr. A. C. Lupton, portrait in oils of Mr. Benjamin Goodman; from Dr. Eddison, minute books and reports of the Female Servants' Aid Society; from Miss Killingbeck, water-colour drawing of Old Hunslet; from Mr. S. Denison, a portrait of Dr. Chadwick, an engraved portrait of Ralph Thoresby, and some dozens of lantern slides; from Councillor Lawson, album of Leeds views; from Mr. B. P. Scattergood, a contemporary account of the Battle of Waterloo, etc. etc.

In this connection the Council would, while putting on record their sense of the liberality of some of the members, again urge upon all the benefit which the Society would derive if it received a larger number of gifts of this kind. Objects of local or antiquarian interest, in themselves insignificant and of small intrinsic value, may form in the aggregate a collection of great interest and value. Amongst things which the Society would greatly appreciate may be named—Old Leeds printed books or books of local interest, portraits of Leeds Worthies, records of extinct local societies, prints, engravings, and pamphlets of local interest.

With regard to the balance-sheet now presented, which nows a balance in favour of the Society of £180 25., in Idition to the stock of publications and other articles hich have been acquired for the purpose of sale, the nuncil would point out that this really represents the nancial state of the Society in a less favourable light and the reality, for in the accounts the Society is debited ith the Life Fees paid by all Life Members who are still ring. If this debit were cancelled the balance shown nuld be more than £500.

The Council desire to call the attention of Members to me large stock of publications which are still undisposed; and to urge upon them the desirability, both from their men point of view individually and from that of the Society; a body, of completing their sets of the publications by tying these surplus copies.

Finally, the Council wish to ask for a larger measure f co-operation on the part of the Members of the Society the work which is to be done. At present the number f workers forms but a very small proportion of the whole membership; and the work of the Society might be tigmented and its usefulness increased to a very large stent if its Members were more universally impressed ith the conviction that their responsibility ought not to be with the payment of the annual subscription. There is very many fields of activity open, if the workers would the come forward.

Swinegate; and there appears to have been a road from the to Sheepscar Bridge and thence to Potternewton, and another me in the direction of Woodhouse Lane.

The next two maps in order of date are those which appafter page 204 of volume ix. These have been already describ. It may be added that since the description of the Philosophical H Map was written, attention has been called to the fact that there or was a similar map of York: it was called Cassins' Map, and be views of buildings at each side; and it is probable that it undrawn by the same hand as the map of Leeds in the Philosophi Hall, which is said to have been surveyed by 'John Cossins."

The next map is one published by C. Livesey in 1806, whi appears after page 136 of this volume. This is not an accummap, for almost every street has been drawn with a ruler.

The map which is now presented to the members is of abt the same date, but it is a very different work. It appears to be t result of an accurate survey; and it has this special advantage, the boundaries of the fields are shown. The Map of 1806 sho practically the same town drawn without much attempt at accurate the must not be supposed that on this account the Map of 1806 of no value. It is probable that, though it does not show a buildings accurately, it shows what buildings then existed, and therefore useful in showing the size of the town at the time when was made. A comparison of the Map of 1806 with the one of 18 will bear this out.

The 1815 Map well deserves careful examination. Its accumand the fact that all the fields are carefully marked have alreated been mentioned. The closely built town may be roughly said to bounded on the west by Park Row, on the north by the site Mark Lane, Harrison Street and Lady Lane, and on the south the river. These boundaries were, however, beginning to be extend To the west we find the Park Square parallelogram—the labetween Park Lane and Park Place, East Parade and Somers Str—being fairly closely built over. South Parade is shown, and old Court House at the bottom of Park Row; but, with the excition of this and a few other buildings, the land between Park R and East Parade was unbuilt upon. The coloured Cloth Hall, the site of City Square, and the old Infirmary, at the bottom of E de, are shown, and the buildings opposite to the entrance to the ington Station, which were called Eye Bright Place.

The introduction of steam power had already led to the erection some large factories. What was Holdforth's Bank Low Mill is wn, as is also Benyon's Mill at Holbeck; and Gott's Mills—called k Mills—are shown, lying between Drony Laith and Bean Ing; I there are others.

The 'pleasant hamlet' of Little Woodhouse is shown, and Denison 11—then called Woodhouse Place—has pleasure grounds extending Park Lane, and had an uninterrupted view down to the river, Ars Mill being the only obstruction. Further east we find James Street, which is thus described in a Leeds Guide of the LT 1808:—"Returning from an examination of these faint vestiges former days, we have to notice a street on the west side of podhouse Lane, called St. James's Street, which is nearly in a line th the upper part of Providence Row. The situation of this weet is extremely pleasant, and from its elevation the air of it is markably salutary and bracing, from which circumstance it is eferred by invalids to any part of the town, and of course lodgings it are in great request. As this place is out of the reach of the mterworks, soft water is scarce, and its supply of spring water is not >undant. The west or bottom end of this street commands a very leasant view of the Aire Dale, and also of the principal buildings the west end of the town."

Our map shows Sunny Bank, and Queen's Square was formed, sough little more than one side was built. Providence Row and sart of Grove Terrace are shown, and building operations are well segun at the lower end of Woodhouse Lane and Wade Lane. Mong North Street also we find a number of buildings, and the sames 'Nile Street' and 'Trafalgar Street' will, it is to be hoped, ong remain to tell us when these streets were laid out. The triangle setween Quarry Hill, Duke Street, and Marsh Lane was not half suilt upon, but the old parts of the town along Mabgate and on the Bank were fairly well covered with buildings.

South of the river, there were many buildings along Meadow Lane and Hunslet Lane. Holbeck was still a village and Hunslet is not shown.

It may be well to say a few words about the highways. The Oldest streets in the town are no doubt those which are called gates.' Briggate, which then extended from the bridge to the end of Kirkgate, the upper part being divided by the Moot Hall a Middle Row into two passages, called 'Shambles' and 'Ba Shambles'; Kirkgate, from Briggate to the Parish Church; Swin Thoresby mentions another thoroughfare in this neighbourhood 'Cripplegate'; and Mabgate. Most of the old thoroughfan called lanes, originally pronounced "loin," and, in consequen inhabitant of Leeds was called a "Leeds Loiner." There are: lanes in the centre of the town-Boar Lane, Butts Lane, now Basinghall Street, Lands Lane, Vicar Lane, High Court Lane an Lane. But many lanes lead from the town to the surrounding α these are, beginning on the north and reading from west to Park Lane; (Chorley Lane, Leighton Lane and Kendall Lane, t shown on the map, are not named); Woodhouse Lane an branches, Cankerwell Lane, Carlton Lane and Claypit Lane; Lane, leading into Long Balk Lane (now called Camp I Sheepscar Lane, the southern portion of which was even in called North Street; Skinner Lane, Lady Lane, Marsh Lane on the south of the river from east to west, Bowman Lane, H Lane, Meadow Lane, and Water Lane, leading to Holbeck.

Wellington Street had not then been formed, nor had Clar Road. Oxford Row was then called Wellington Street.

Commercial Street from Briggate to Albion Street is s though the part of it between Briggate and Trinity Street is Bond Street. What we now call Bond Street had not been for

There are one or two names which suggest enquiry. We now called Dyer Street, between George Street and St. Peter's was called Jubilee Street. The west end of Boar Lane was Quebec, and the island between the river and King's Mill Go called School Close. It probably belonged to a member of Nevile family, for the streets laid out across it are named I and Sandford Streets: the latter now covered by the North-E Station.

May I say a word about the naming of streets? I would end a devout hope that the good old names may not give place to names copied from London thoroughfares.

Leeds has already suffered in this respect. Butts Lane is called Basinghall Street, probably because the Bankruptcy C which is there no longer, was once at its south end.

The street south of St. John's Church is still called Mark Lane, ugh the Corn Exchange is no longer there. Merry Boys Hill—tts Hill on our map—is now known as Guildford Street, and ly a few months ago it was actually proposed to call Vicar Lane he Strand"—a monstrous piece of vandalism. The Strand in mdon is so called because it runs along the north bank of the names. I know of no reason for giving that title to Vicar Lane.

I ought now to enumerate some of the principal buildings shown a our Waterloo Map. There were then five churches in Leeds. he Parish Church, which of course was what we now call the Old hurch, though there had probably been more than one prior church a the site. The one shown on the map was pulled down in 1838. L. John's, built by John Harrison in the seventeenth century; 'rinity, the cost of which was largely defrayed by Lady Betty Lastings; St. Paul's, in Park Square; and St. James's, in York Street.

The last-named church was built about 1794 for Dissenters of ady Huntingdon's connection.

The Leeds vicarage then stood in Kirkgate, at the south end of Jicar Lane, surrounded by ground still spoken of as the Vicar's Croft.

Of the chapels shown on the map a list of fifteen is given in the margin. I will now give that list, with such remarks with regard to each as occur to me. Several of the chapels are no longer used for religious purposes.

Albion Chapel, Albion Street. This is in Albion Walk, and was formerly used as an Independent Chapel. It is now used as offices, and it has attached to it a graveyard, lying between the building and the premises of Powolny's, Limited.

Bank Chapel, Richmond Hill. This is shown on the map as situate at the top of Richmond Street. It is no longer used as a chapel; but it may be stated here that on the Ordnance Map of 1847 there is a building in Upper Cross Street, called Bank Chapel, which was afterwards used as a school, and has recently been converted into a rag warehouse.

Baptist Chapel, St. Ann's Street, St. Peter's. This is known as the Old Stone Chapel on the west side of St. Peter's Street. It has for many years been used as a boot factory.

Bethel Chapel, St. George Street, Vicar Lane. This street is now called George Street. There is no building there now used as a chapel.

Call Lane Chapel. This is one of the oldest Dissenting chapsin Leeds. It was formerly used by the Arians. It is still used a chape!

Ebenezer Chapel. This was at the top of Ebenezer Street, of George Street. The building is still standing, but it is now used a cooper's shop.

The Friends' Meeting House in Water Lane is still standing at has been added to in recent years.

The Inghamite Chapel was situate in Duke Street. The premium were afterwards known as Nos. 16 and 17, Duke Street. It was used as a chapel in 1847.

The Old Methodist Chapel was said to be situate in St. And Street, St. Peter's, now called St. Peter's Street; there is still! Methodist Chapel there, though it is believed that the builds shown on the map has given place to a newer structure.

The Old White Chapel in Hunslet Lane was situate south of the South Market; it is not now used for religious purposes.

The New Methodist Chapel in Albion Street was for many you used as a cloth warehouse by Vance & Co. and Robinson, Ca and Co. It now forms part of the premises occupied by the Mutual Supply Society.

Mill Hill Chapel was a very old Dissenting place of worship. The building shown on our map gave place to the present Gothic chapel in 1847.

The Roman Catholic Chapel was situate in Lady Lane Thoresby says that there was a chapel or chantry on or near the site before the Reformation, but the present chapel—which is not used as a Methodist chapel—was the first Roman Catholic chapel in Leeds, though before its erection the congregation used a temporary building in a yard out of Briggate.

An interesting account of the Roman Catholic revival in Leed has recently been published by the Rev. N. Waugh.

Salem Chapel was and still is in Hunslet Lane, and is still used by the Congregationalists, as also is the Wesleyan Chapel in Meadow Lane by the Wesleyans This is now called Wesley Chapel.

Of other public buildings the following may be named:—The Coloured Cloth Hall, on the site of the Post Office and City Square: the White Cloth Hall, in the Calls; the old Infirmary, at the bottom of East Parade, though there was an older one still in 1 yard out of Kirkgate; the Court House, in Park Row, afterward used as a post office, and recently demolished to make way for the adard buildings; the Music-hall, in Albion Street; the King's ls, in Swinegate; the Lancasterian School, south of Boar Lane; Library, in Commercial Street; Potter's and St. John's Almsues, and Jenkinson's Almshouses, then in Boar Lane; the rkhouse, at the corner of Lady Lane and North Street; the House Recovery, in Vicar Lane.

The Assembly Rooms were over part of the White Cloth Hall. is building still exists, though no part of it is used as a Cloth III, and the North-Eastern Railway crosses the site.

The only National School in the town appears to have been one connection with the Parish Church, situate west of High Court ne. There appears to have been no building where the present rish Church Schools now stand.

The Post Office was in Duncan Street, on a site afterwards cupied by the Central Market. At one time it was in Mill Hill; crwards at the bottom of Albion Street; then it was removed to e Old Court House at the bottom of Park Row, where the work as carried on until the present Post Office was built.

Briggate, as has already been mentioned, terminated at the end Kirkgate. There the old Moot Hall stood, with Queen Anne's atue in the front of it. The Market Cross was higher up, in the last of what is now Briggate, then called Cross Parish.

There were four banks in the town. The Old Bank (Beckett and Co.), on the east side of Briggate, below Duncan Street; the Inion Bank (William Williams Brown & Co.), in Commercial Street; be Commercial Bank, on the west side of Briggate, at the entrance Commercial Court; and the New Bank, in Bank Street.

Four bars are shown, which might lead to the inference that seeds was once a walled town. North Bar was in North Street, a ttle north of the top of Lady Lane; East Bar was at the end of sirkgate, near the Parish Church; West Bar was in Boar Lane; and harley Bar in what is now called Guildford Street, at the top of serry Boys Hill.

Before the present admirable and copious supply of water was btained from the Washburn and the Wharfe Valley, Leeds was applied from the River Aire at Leeds Bridge, and our map reminds of this, for it shows the two reservoirs which existed in Albion treet and near St. John's Church, as well as the pumping station, nown as Pitfall Mill. Other buildings shown are the Charity chool, near St. John's Church, the Grammar School, North Street, built by John Harrison before it was enlarged southward, and before the Writing School and Library on the west side were but the Library, in Commercial Street, the News-room, on the east side of Briggate, north of Duncan Street, the Old Theatre, in Hunslet Lan

The bridge between Kirkgate and Marsh Lane was then, as not called Timble Bridge, a name which has been said to be derive from Temple, because perhaps the road over it was not the way! Temple Newsam. Perhaps the guesser responsible for this etymological not know that in 1379 there were only four inhabitants of Led assessed at the large sum of 12d., and one of these was Johann de Tymbill, and he had four servants, each of whom was assessed at 4d.

Much more might be written about this interesting map, but is feared the length of this paper has already exceeded reasonal dimensions.

He had his Academical Education at New Colledge, in Oxford, was Chaplain of the Colledge, as the noted Bishop Gunning¹ had 1 some Time before.

He commenc'd Master of Arts, July 9, 1658² (praestitis exercitiis Statuta requisitis), as appears by a Testimonial under the Hand of University Register.

In the beginning of that Year, having past through not only his ne, but his Studies in the University, he went to be Assistant to Cheynel,³ at Petworth, in Sussex, a great Living.

Soon after his Settlement there, he was publickly and solemnly lained, and set apart to the Office of a Preaching Presbyter (so the stimonial of his Ordination runs) and the Work of the Ministry, with sting, Prayer, and the Imposition of the Hands of Six Presbyters, the Parish Church of Arundel, October 26, 1658. He having given fficient Testimony of his competent Age, his unblameable Life and onversation, of his Diligence and Proficiency in his Studies, and of s fair and direct Calling to the fore-mentioned Place; and they con Examination finding him to be duly qualified and gifted for lat Holy Office and Employment.

He continued at Petworth till Michaelmas, 1660, when Dr. Cheynel as put out to make Room for Dr. King, Bishop of Chichester. Ir. Stretton, however, staid, and preach'd there till November (as r. Calamy's Account is), having two friends, viz. Captain Taylor and Ir. Bernard, who were very great with the Bishop, and prevented im sending down any other. The Bishop by them offer'd Mr. tretton £100 per Annum and the Choice of any Prebend he had at was vacant, if he would be his Curate at Petworth; but Ir. Stretton not being satisfied to conform, declin'd it; and upon he Bishop's sending another down to the Place, he quitted it.

Coming to London, quite at a loss how to dispose of hi Mr. James Nalton¹ providentially met him in the Street; and h been spoken to by the Lord Fairfax to recommend a Chapla him, he presently brought Mr. Stretton to him; and upor Recommendation my Lord accepted of him, and took him with him to his Seat in Yorkshire, and soon found himself and Family very happy in having such a skilful, faithful helper in Things of God.

While he was Chaplain to my Lord Fairfax he married Deb Daughter of Mr. Robert Moreton, that excellent, pious, useful that was some Time Minister at Church-Lawford, near Coventry Sister to Dr. Richard Moreton, who was turn'd out at Kinve Staffordshire, and afterwards was a very eminent Physician in Lor and one of the Colledge. By her he had a Child or two born he was in my Lord's Family, and great Respect was show'd him the whole Family.

He continued there till my Lord Fairfax dy'd, preach'c Funeral Sermon, which is in Manuscript in many Hands; as is a Sermon preach'd while he was there on Occasion of the Ma of a Relation of my Lord's.

ife's Life; which was a great Support to him all his Days. Thus and rais'd up Friends for those that in the Way of their Duty cast temselves upon his Providence.

The Respect which was put upon him while he was in my Lord with a specific and the considerable Families in those Parts. Judge Rokeby, was made one of the Blessings and Ornaments of the Bench the Revolution, was his intimate Friend.

Many eminent Divines of the Church of England he had likewise Intimacy with; particularly Dr. Tillotson, afterwards Archbishop Canterbury, who was born in Yorkshire. Mr. Stretton, while he Chaplain to my Lord Fairfax, being call'd upon some Business London, Dr. Tillotson would have no Nay but he must preach him at St. Lawrence's Church as a Country Minister; but it coming out some how or other that he was a Nonconformist, the Doctor had a private Reprimand for it from the Bishop of London. It appears by divers Letters to him, found among his papers, that had many Invitations of that Kind in the Country; and a very friendly Correspondence he kept up with many Conforming Divines, who reposed a great confidence in him, and testified large Respects towards him.

Upon the Death of the Lord Fairfax he removed to Leeds, and settled there with a Congregation of Dissenters, to whom his Ministry was highly acceptable; and there he continued Six or Seven Years.³

² John Tillotson (1630-1694), Archbishop of Canterbury 1691, was born at Old Haugh End, Sowerby, parish of Halifax; B.A., Clare Hall, Cambridge, 1650. (See Dictionary of National Biography.)

^{*}In May, 1672, a licence was granted to Richard Stretton to hold meetings of Presbyterians at the house of Mrs. Frances Richardson at Cawood, and on the 31st May a receipt for it was given by Timothy Cloudsley. (Cal. State Papers, Dom.) In the Leeds Register for June, 1674, are the following notes:—"The first time—Ye 15th day Mr Streeton, Ness and Armitage, with their Schismatical Assemblies, was convicted by ye oathes of Lawson and Halliwel, Apparatours. The second time July ye 19th." 1674-5, Feb.—"The 8th day came ye Order for suppressing ye Popish and Schismatical Assemblies, dated from ye Councel Table. February ye 3th (74)." (Thoresby Society, vol. x, p. 150.) On the 9th February, 1675, Oliver Heywood preached in private at Mr. Stretton's house, the licences to preach being withdrawn. (Diary, i, p. 336, ed. Turner.) On the 5th August, 1677, Heywood preached for him at the new meeting place, and on the following day he wrote a letter for some of the congregation, asking Mr. Stretton to return from London and continue with them. (Diary, i, 341; ii, 39.)

While he was there he buried Three Sons in a little Time; To of them of the Small-Pox in a few Days one of another.1 It was a Afficient that went very near him, and so strong was his Nati Affertion that it was Evercise for all the Wisdom and Grace he h to hear up under it. There is found among his Papers a Letter Conditionee and Consolation written to him upon that Occasion the Earl of Clare, Father to the Late Duke of Newcastle, who w then Abribad in his Travels, dated at Paris, June 16, 1677. The arguears in it much of serious Piety, and a particular Friendship t Noble Lord had for Mr. Stretton.

In the Year 1677 he removed to London, and several Dissent that were at that Time either deprivid of their Ministers or otherwi unsettled sat down under his Ministry, and he continued with the to his death.

In 1670 he publish'd a Paper call'd The Protestant Conformis or. A Plea for Moderation, contained in a Letter from one Con forming Minister to another, and his Answer to it. It had no nat to it. but it met with great Acceptance. It was occasioned by Letter fr. m. his dear friend, Mr. John Thoresby, of Leeds, which was likewise printed with it; so I am informed, as likewise of many other things concerning Mr. Stretton, by his Son, Mr. Ralph Thoresby, now of Leeds, that Learned Antiquary, and Fellow of the Royal Society; who has already obligid the World with the Additions to Cambden's Britannia for York-shire, and from whom is expected the Antiquities of Leeds, who was a true Lover of Mr. Stretton, and was much respected by him.

At the Time when the Persecution was hot against Dissenters, 1683, he was the first of Ten Ministers that were taken up as living in a Corporation, and had the Oxford Oath tender'd them; That k is unlawful upon any Pretence whatsoever to take up Arms against the King: which was first contradicted and broken through, and then repealed at the Revolution. He had not been at his om

Ben died prior to a letter datel March 8, 1683-4, and Richard became a minister. (See Thoresby's Ducatus, p. 32)

² Mr. D. H. Atkins in has well described Thoresby's matrimonial adventures in which Mr. Strett in to k a prominent part, in chapter v of his work on Raiph Thorashy. Mr. Stretton introduced and recommended Thoresby to various families as a saitor, but with ill success.

use of Ten Weeks, but the very next Morning after his Return to so very vigilant were their Spies and Informers), by Five of the ck in the Morning he was seiz'd by the then City Marshal, who ur'd his Papers, and would not suffer him to seal up what he de Choice of out of them; and immediately carried him and m before the King and Council: Some present would have his pers look'd over, to see if they could find any Treason in them, t the King did not encourage it, saying, He believed there was no eason there. As at another Time when a sorry Fellow, one Fox, fer'd to swear that Mr. Stretton, with my Lord Clare, was in the of then charg'd upon the Dissenters, the King laugh'd at the formation as altogether improbable, and inconsistent with itself.

But though he was dismiss'd from the Council Board, he was occeded against upon the Five Miles Act.1 That Night the Marshal ok his Word for his Appearance next Morning, when according to is Promise he surrender'd himself, and was brought before the Lord layor, who carried it with great Respect and Civility to him, imporanately desiring him once and again to withdraw for a little Time, nd consider whether he could not take the enjoyn'd Oaths, which he hoped he might, and so escape the Penalty of the Law. Mr. stretton told his Lordship that he would not give the Court the Irouble of waiting for his Answer, for he could not expect to get Satisfaction in that Case, in so short a Time as a Regard to that Court would only suffer him to take; when he had been many Years meeking after it, and could not obtain it. However, my Lord Mayor persisted in his Advice, and in Compliance with his Lordship's kind Desire, he withdrew for some Time; but when he return'd told his Ordship he could not do it; which his Lordship said he was sorry r, for then there was no Remedy, but he must follow the Direction f the Law, and so sent him to Newgate,2 where he continued a risoner Six full Months; in which time he had a Son died, who in is Sickness earnestly desired to see his Father, as the Father no Jubt did to see the Child, but all the Interest he could make would ot procure him that Liberty. During his stay in Newgate Mr. mith, the Ordinary, show'd him great respect, and call'd him up tore than once into the Chapel to assist him in preparing the ondemned Criminals for their Death.

² On 29 September, 1683, he wrote from Newgate to Oliver Heywood (Diary, 99), and on the 1st September to Thoresby.

suntry, to promote Good Works. He was a principal Man in the ting up and keeping up a Fund for the Help of poor Ministers and Congregations in the Country, who had not many like minded bough blessed be God some there are) that naturally cared for the trip State. He made it his Business to find out the Hands that the able to give and fit to receive, and to bring them together. Hose that were intrusted with the Distribution of Charities applied themselves very much to him to recommend to them proper Objects. Charity, which he did with great Prudence and Fidelity; and then be Wonder if those that needed Help applied themselves to him kewise.

He was active to help useful Books into the World, and to accurage the publishing of them, as Dr. Manton's Works,² to the ifth Volume of which he prefix'd a Preface, and a very ingenious, andsom one it is. And also took a deal of Pains to furnish ibraries in Scotland, and in the private Academies in England, with ld Books; and to supply young Students that were poor with such looks as were proper for them: a great deal of mony he laid out imself, out of the little he had, and a great deal more he procured from others for this good Purpose. He knew what Books were seful, and how to buy them at the best Hand,³ and by his Activity serein many valuable Pieces, that otherwise would still have lain buried in Dust and Cobwebs, have been sent into Hands that are laily making good use of them.

His pious Zeal herein extended itself beyond the Seas, as appears y the Abstract of a Letter which is found among his Papers, from lat great and good Man, Monsieur Frank, Professor at Hall in axony, wherein he acknowledges to have received the Polyglot Bible om Mr. Stretton, as a Present to their Library there, and returns s most hearty thanks to so good a Benefactor.

He was very forward to encourage Youths that he saw or heard be ingenious and well disposed, and to assist them in their ducation for the Ministry; He kept up a Correspondence for this

² See letter to Thoresby of 26 April, 1683. (Thoresby Letters, i, 27.)

³ See Thoresby Letters, i, pp. 18, 47, 49, 56, 61, 73, 74, 79, 359, in which he posses an exchange of books with Thoresby, which few people would now coner advantageous to the latter.

Purpose with the Universities of Scotland, and was instrumental in sending many thither, and procuring Assistance there for some that needed it.

He buried his dear Wife¹ in the Year 1695, and by her he left only one Son living, who has been many Years useful in the Ministry.

About the Year 1707 the Infirmities of Age grew upon him, occasioned by an ill Fall he had as he was returning to his House, after preaching on a publick Fast-Day, in which Exercise he had exceeded his Strength; yet he continued doing Good to the last, and the Spirit was as willing as ever, even when the Flesh was weak, and not weak only, but much pain'd. When he could scarce set one Foot before another, yet he would attend the Lecture at Salters Hall and the Meeting for Charitable Contributions very sedulously, though at a great Distance from his House: And but a little before he dy'd, when he was so weak and ill that he could scarce mind any Thing else, yet he stir'd up himself to give Advice and Direction in an Affair of Charity, wherein his Assistance had been much depended upon.

He kept up his publick Work, though he struggled with much Difficulty in it, till within Ten Weeks of his Death; and often took Notice of it with Thankfulness to God, that though for some time before he was confin'd to his House all the Week, yet till May 4, 1712, he had Strength on the Lord's Day to go to his Meeting-Place and preach once, and administer the Lord's Supper every Month.

In his last Illness he express'd a chearful Resignation of himself to the Will of God, an entire Dependance upon the Grace of Christ, and a believing, comfortable Expectation of the Glory to be revealed.

Some of his Sayings in his Weakness have been mentioned in the foregoing Sermon, and need not to be repeated.

He finished his Course, and fell asleep in the Lord, on Thursday, July 3, 1712, and was buried the Monday following, in the Burying Place in Bun-hill Fields.² There the Weary are at Rest.

FINIS.

¹ On the death of his wife Stretton wrote a pathetic letter to Thoresby, dated 4 May, 1698. (Thoresby Letters, i, p. 202.)

² On 31 July, 1707, he wrote to Thoresby:—"I crawl about with great difficulty and uneasiness, and yet when carried to my work I am enabled to go through it."

EXTRACTS FROM THE SERMON.1

He was very active, as I am informed, in furnishing poor Ministers and Candidates for the Ministry with useful Books: A great deal of Ioney and Time and Pains he bestowed this Way; and herein his arnest Care reach'd as far as the North of Scotland, large Sums eing procured by him for the erecting of Libraries there; and an xcellent Method it was, both for the diffusing of Knowledge to listant Places and the preserving of it to future Ages. In his abours for carrying on that and other pious Designs, he was ndefatigable to the last, and his Diligence kept Pace with his earnest Care. He had had an Acquaintance with divers parts of the Kinglom; was born in Leicestershire; the First Fruits of his Ministry were at Petworth, in Sussex; from that place he was thrown out from a Curacy there) at the Restoration. But upon that Providence cast his Lot in Yorkshire, where he continued about Seventeen Years, and then moved to this City. And what a Blessing he was to that County by his extensive Beneficence and Care for them, after his Removal hither; I am told that there are many that will witness that never saw his Face.

He had an Acquaintance with many considerable Families both in City and Country, and an Interest in them, which he improv'd, not for himself, but for the Public Good. All that knew him valued him for his try'd Integrity, and that great Plainness and Sincerity which was remarkable in him. He used to say that he kept up his Acquaintance with Persons of Estate and Figure as long as he could improve it for the doing of Good, and when it could no longer be made to serve that Purpose, he let it drop; for, said he, I'll never adore a gilded Post.

When a Friend of his that visited him in his Sickness mentioned o him his great Usefulness, and what Comfort he might now have n Reflection upon it, he humbly replied, Alas, I have done but little Service for God in my Generation; I wish I had done more: But saith he) God is good and gracious.

¹ Thoresby notes in his Diary (ii, p. 137, ed. Hunter):—"Die Dom. Morning rote in Diary; then inquired after Mr Stretton's meeting-place, which I found ung round with black; Mr. Cotton preached very well from Prov. xiij, 31, Doc. at old age in the way and service of God is very honourable. Afternoon, Ir. Henry preached excellently upon the much lamented death of Mr. Stretton, om 2 Cor. viii, 16." Thoresby then gives an epitome of the sermon.

Survey of the Manor of Leeds.

nanuscript of which this is a transcription is a copy by s Wilson, schoolmaster, made in 1740. Either the original ave contained many corruptions, or the original copyist must een very careless in transcribing. The manuscript in its condition is full of false concords and almost unintelligible ations. For the sake of clearness most of the mistakes have prrected, and many of the abbreviations written in full. The ript belongs to the library of the Leeds Grammar School, is with the kind permission of the Headmaster and Governors is now published.

J. Whiteherd & Son, Printers, Alfred Street, Boar Lane, Leeds,

REPORT FOR 1903.

THE Council of the Thoresby Society have pleasure in presenting their Report for the year 1903, being the Fifteenth Annual eport since the Society's formation. During the year eight Life Lembers and twenty-eight Annual Members have joined the Society, and the number on the Roll at the close of the year was 351, of hom 68 were Life and 283 Annual Members. Taking into account passes by death and resignation, these figures show a small but tratifying increase in the membership during the year of five Life and eight Annual Members, a total increase of thirteen.

Since the last report the following publications have been issued members:—Methley Parish Registers (1560-1812), Leeds Parish Church Registers (continued down to 1713), and a Miscellaneous Part. With regard to the last named, attention may be called to a avourable notice by Dr. C. H. Firth in the January number of the English Historical Review. The Council are much gratified by this estimonial to the value of the work done by members of the Society. It is hoped that before the close of the present year the remaining parts of the Kirkstall Coucher Book and the Calverley Charters will be in the hands of the members of the Society, and it s hoped also to issue another Miscellaneous Part in the autumn.

The excursions during 1903 have been to the following places:— Joncaster, the Roman Road and Adwick-le-Street, under the guidance f Mr. J. N. Barran; Mount Grace Priory (Mr. William Brown and Mr. E. K. Clark); and Leeds Parish Church (Mr. Braithwaite and the Rev. J. G. Simpson). Other excursions had been planned, but were abandoned owing to unfavourable weather. The hearty thanks of the Council are due to those who organised the excursions and acted as guides on the different occasions.

The Society has lost by death during the past year the following members:— Mr. Edward Birchall, Mr. C. S. Rooke (a former member of Council), Mr. Washington Teasdale, Mr. Jas. Bedford, Mr. W. H. Battie Wrightson, and Mr. H. J. Palmer.

The Council desire to call special attention to the need of increased revenue. The cost of the recently issued publications was unusually heavy, and the payment of the balance of purchase money of the premises in Park Street will make a steady and serious call upon the finances for some years to come. The Council feel that the work they are doing is one which should have the sympathy of all who are interested in Leeds; and there are two ways in which help may be given:—

- (1) By the payment of a Life Fee. The small sum of five guineas will secure the publications for the rest of the life of the subscriber; and
- (2) By the purchase of back numbers. The Council desire to impress upon all members who have joined the Society since its commencement, the importance of securing a complete set of the publications.

The early volumes may be secured bound on very reasonable terms, and it is satisfactory to think that during the fifteen years of the Society's existence more than 500 volumes were disposed of including exchanges and volumes presented to subscribing libraries, the income resulting being over £270.

This Report would be incomplete without some reference to the interesting discoveries which were made in the month of February, 1903, at Temple Thorpe Farm, near Temple Newsam. While ploughing in a field near the farm a stone was turned up, which on examination proved to be part of a stone coffin containing human remains. Other bones were found, and the discovery was reported to the Hon. Mrs. Meynell-Ingram, who directed that excavations should be made, which resulted in the discovery of the almost complete foundations of what was probably a chapel of the thirteenth century period. It is hoped that in a future volume of Miscellanea a fuller account of these discoveries may be given.

The Thoresby Society.

ANNUAL REPORT

AND

FOR THE YEAR 1904.

REPORT FOR 1904.

THE Council of the Thoresby Society have the pleasure to present their Sixteenth Annual Report. The last Report showed the total number on the roll of members as 351, of whom 68 were Life and 283 Annual Members. During the year two Life Members and fifteen Annual Members have joined the Society, and the losses by death and resignation have been twelve. Thus the number on the Roll at the end of the year was 356, of whom 70 were Life and 286 Annual Members.

It is a matter of very great regret that, owing to unforeseen difficulties, it has been found impossible to issue any publications during the past year. Three parts are, however, in the press, of which two, a Miscellaneous Part and the concluding part of the Coucher Book of Kirkstall Abbey, are completed; and the third, the last part of the Calverley Charters, is complete, with the exception of a small portion of the index. It is confidently hoped that all these three parts will be issued to members during the month of April. When this is done, the Society's publications will be complete up to the end of 1904.

Excursions have been made to the following places:—Friar's Head, Calton, and Kirkby Malham; Hartshead and Kirklees Priory; Castle Howard; and Rothwell (the last being an evening excursion). Messrs. J. N. Barran, E. K. Clark, S. D. Kitson, and S. Denison acted as guides on the respective occasions, and the attendance in every case was most gratifying. Indeed, from this point of view, the Society has never had a more successful season.

The Librarian reports the following additions to the Society's collection during the year:—

Parish Registers of Farnborough (1 vol.), presented by Mr. Henry Wilson. Historic Mansions of Yorkshire (2 vols.: W. Wheater), presented by Mr. Richard Jackson.

Leeds Corporation: Council Proceedings, presented by Town Clerk.

Leeds Mercury (old) (2 vols.), presented by Mr. C. B. Howdill.

St. Anne's Cathedral, History of (1 vol.), presented by Col. C. Coghlan. Local Pamphlets (3), presented by Mr. S. Denison.

Provincial Tokens and Coins (Gill, Leeds), 2 pamphlets, presented by Mr. R. P. Oglesby.

Parcel of Old Deeds relating to Upper Tenters, Leeds, presented by Mr. Thos. Shackleton.

Parcel of Old Deeds, presented by Mr. C. E. Arundel.

Mappa Mundi (on rollers), presented by Mr. J. H. Wurtzburg.

Interior of Leeds Parish Church (framed litho.), presented by Mr S. Denison.

Interior of St. John's Church, Leeds (framed photo.), presented by Mr. E. K. Clark.

Four photos of Hunslet National Schools, presented by Mr. Joseph Nicholson.

Kirkstall Charters (Album of Photos.), presented by Mr. G. Bingley.

Indemnification Deed, 1706, Leeds to Oulton, presented by Mr. Batty, of Rothwell.

MS. Notes of Heraldry at Rothwell Parish Church, presented by Mr. W. Wright.

MS. Notes of Architecture of Rothwell Parish Church, presented by Mr. H. S. Chorley.

Sundry Plaster Casts, taken at Collingham Church and elsewhere, presented by Mr. J. H. Whitham.

Water-colour Drawing of Spofforth Castle, presented by Miss Whitham.

An Old Leeds Tobacco Box, presented by Mr. J. N. Barran.

St. John's Church Tower and Old Vicarage (framed etching, by Walter Braithwaite), presented by Mr. S. Denison.

Set of Ordnance Survey Sheets of the Central Part of Leeds, with licensed houses marked thereon, presented by Mr. F. M. Lupton.

Thoresby's Town and Times (2 vols., Atkinson).

Legendary Yorkshire (1 vol., Andrews).

England in the Old Days (1 vol., Andrews).

Caricature History of the Georges (1 vol., T. Wright).

Dugdale's England and Wales (8 vols. in four).

The Right to Bear Arms (1 vol., by "X").

Thirty-six Lantern Slides, presented by Mr. S. Denison.

The Council wish to express on behalf of the Society their gratitude to the above donors. In this connection, it may not be out of place to repeat a remark which has been made before, namely that objects in themselves of little intrinsic value may in the aggregate form a local collection of great interest and importance.

During the year two Exhibitions have been held in the Society's rooms; the first, of the valuable collection of pictures and engravings of Kirkstall Abbey, kindly lent for the occasion by the Rev. N. Egerton Leigh; the second, of an interesting collection of pictures of Old Leeds and other records and relics of local interest, which were temporarily put at the Society's disposal by the kindness of J. H. Wurtzburg, Esq. These Exhibitions were advertised in the local papers, and were visited by a considerable number of persons. Although no charge was made for admission, it is believed that such Exhibitions not only increase the interest felt by Leeds people in the history and traditions of their city, but are distinctly beneficial to the Society, as in each case an increase in the membership has resulted.

A Lantern Exhibition was also given in December of views of Old Leeds, which was largely attended, and the Council hope to arrange for evening lectures and exhibitions on similar lines during the winter of the present year.

The Council have to note with deep regret the death in the prime of life of Mr. Francis W. Bedford, a former member of their body.

The Council desire to call special attention to an important matter, namely the exchanging of publications with kindred societies. The President has been engaged for months in endeavouring to increase the number of exchanging societies, and has already added the following:—

Bucks. Architectural and Archæological Society.
Chester and North Wales Archæological and Historic Society.
East Herts. Archæological Society.
Ireland, the Royal Society of Antiquaries of.
Kent Archæological Society.
Newcastle-upon-Tyne, the Society of Antiquaries of.
Norfolk and Norwich Archæological Society.
The William Salt Archæological Society, Stafford.
Scotland, the Society of Antiquaries of.

If in every suitable centre there was a publishing society with a library, exchanging arrangements would enable every society to have at its own centre a complete set of the publications of all kindred societies. In this respect the Thoresby is probably the strongest society in the United Kingdom.

Negotiations with other societies are still in progress, and the President is also engaged in endeavouring to increase the number of subscribing Libraries. We receive already annual subscriptions from sixty-two Libraries, including eleven in the United States. These Libraries are very valuable members. They are indeed Life Members who never die, and do not compound, and it is of great advantage to us to have our volumes bound on the shelves of libraries in various parts of the world.

The arrangements above referred to have resulted in valuable additions to our library, and these additions are being still increased.

The Council would add a suggestion to members who have joined since the formation of the Society, that they should complete their sets of Transactions whilst this can be done; a very moderate price has been fixed, and the volumes will be issued bound, on application to the Treasurer. The Council look to the adoption of this suggestion as an important means of enabling them to raise the balance yet unpaid of the purchase money for their property in Park Street.
